INTRODUCTION

In compiling this family tree, I have tried to include as many relatives as possible. The majority of the information – photos, stories, letters, etc – have not come from me. The credit lies with the many cousins who have contributed to this research. I have tried very hard to be sure to include everyone and everything, yet I am sure I have still inadvertently left people out, or have incorrect dates, and so on. It has never been my intent to exclude nor offend anyone.

For the sake of privacy, no vital records past the deaths of the sixth generation are included.

I have used multiple sources for historical information, both on line and published. I have listed these sources as much as possible. Often, the text used in this volume comes straight from these sources.

Please feel free to contact me with errors and additions you have for this version of the family tree so I may correct and provide more accurate information going forward.

Finally, this information belongs to all of us. If anyone wants a CD copy of the Tree, please let me know.

PREFACE

This is a labor of love. Engrossing, joyous, frustrating, maddening. Yet, I have no regrets! It was born of a deep desire: to know who I am. Born and raised in San Diego, far away from the family enclave in Milwaukee, I had a deep yearning to understand the origin of my name. I attempted this project once before, in 7th grade, but didn't get very far. My dream sat on the back burner until the birth of my children, especially my son, who bears my maiden name as his own middle name. A spark started, and, through a lot of time, energy, and tremendous luck, I was able to uncover the original birth records of my ancestors in Poland. The pieces began to fall into place after that.

The most intensely satisfying part of this research for me has been the discovery of so many cousins, persons like myself, who were also trying to uncover their roots. Indeed, this project is a celebration of us all. There has been immeasurable contribution from so many individuals. Old photographs. Love letters. Family stories. Gazettes. None of this would have been possible without everyone's individual contribution, and I am grateful to you all.

There were quite a few assumptions and decisions I had to make while compiling all the data. The most frustrating of all of these dealt with spellings and dates. In many instances, there were no correlations at all between dates on birth records, marriage records, and death records. If I had the original birth record, I chose to use that as the true date. Spelling was also maddening. Not only was 19th century Polish spelled phonetically, but also, reflecting politics, the language changed from Polish to Russian and back again. Although I am able to pick out some of the Polish words, Russian was completely beyond my grasp, and so I used a professional translator. Once again, when I inputted surnames, I used the exact spelling according to the document on hand. Thus, Saltzstein could be spelled Zalcsztejn, Zalsshtein, and Salsteen. The numerous spellings in the Family Tree are not necessarily typos on my part!

Most frustrating: when does one stop and consider the work complete? Obviously it will never be complete. I will continue the search for more , but don’t want to continue delaying “completion” of the project.

So, without further ado, here is the updated Saltzstein Family Tree, Version 2.0. I sincerely hope everyone will enjoy it, share it, and add to it.

DEDICATION

This edition is a result of many people working together, a group effort involving most all branches of every family, providing me with stories, vital records, photos and such. Sandy, Bill, Todd, David, Amy, Bob, Mary and Johnny – you were monumental in your support and advice. I wish to personally thank everyone for his or her efforts in providing me with all the information. Even if you didn't think it was important, I found it extremely so and greatly value all your assistance.

Again, one person stood out across the ages, and again deserves special recognition. Susan Saltzstein Folz made a freehand copy of the family tree back in the '60's on butcher paper on her kitchen table. My father gave me his copy of her family tree, and it has proved both invaluable and accurate. When I would hit a road block, or feel that I was getting nowhere, pulling out this tree would always provide me with inspiration, information, and a new direction.

My Aunt Sue died almost 30 years ago. It is in her memory that I dedicate this version of the Saltzstein Family Tree.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

A very special thank you to my husband. Your patience and love, insight, knowledge of the web and the computer, provided true breakthroughs and inspiration. You found the JRI Poland website. You found the correct software and transferred all the files. You helped me constantly with all the difficulty with editing. Whenever I would have a technical question, which was horrifyingly frequent, you were always right there to assist. You tolerated my incessant habit of booting you off the computer so I could do my work. You spent countless hours trying to find ways to make my search easier, clearer, and more concise. You never acted bored as I'd recount my latest discovery or theory on my family. You're right – you should be paid for all your efforts.

And to my children, I thank you as well for trying so often to assist your technologically-challenged mother, your unbridled enthusiasm even if feigned, and your unconditional love and support.

I love you and thank you all!

WHAT'S NEW?

I believe all of you have seen the initial Family Tree that I sent in CD form in 2003. This has also been posted on line at: www.saltzstein.us by Bill Saltzstein.

My successes: Included in this new edition are several more branches. One is from Favel Saltzstein's brother, Szmul Nosek Saltzstein. I was able to track down the majority of descendants from Johanna/Jachewet Saltzstein Rosen. I have also included many more photos and articles surrounding the family, as well as included full-sized copies of the Polish records for those who wanted to see clearer records. Another upgrade is the addition of color where available. Finally, I have located what I strongly believe to be photos of Favel and Chaya. These were kept together with a framed photo of Johanna/Jachewet, startlingly similar to Isadore's known photos, and a high match with facial recognition software.

My big failures: being unable to locate Abraham Saltzstein (Favel's nephew and Szmul Nosek's son) and being unable to link us to another Saltzstein family in Pennsylvania. The latter was disproven via DNA.

I have also tried, for archival purposes, to include every bit of information ever passed on to me. This is, of course, a daunting task, and I have tried my best not to leave anything, or anyone, out, but I had to decide when and where to draw the line. I decided to forgo information from the 6th generation and on – and hopefully I have been consistent. I wasn't at all certain on how to organize the information. I finally elected to leave information in family groups with a preface outlining these relationships. Some of the information is duplicated as it applies to more than one family group. Ancestors are listed in order of birth to make the reading "simpler". For example, Favel was born before Szmul Nosek, so Favel, and all his descendants, are listed before Szmul Nosek and his descendents. I have tried to be consistent in my organization with listing of birth records, photos, articles, death records, obituaries and finally cemetery photos. However, as you will see with Meyer Saltzstein, I organized a bit differently due to his three marriages – it just seemed to flow better. I added blank pages at strategic points to make the viewing easier. Where I was able, I rotated the census records to enlarge them for easier viewing – hopefully I won't make you dizzy having to rotate the document to view!

Additionally, all of my personal family genealogy is included in the kinship report. I have tried numerous ways to delete trees that are not really the focus of the Saltzstein research, but it is impossible. Sorry.

At the end of the book is a chapter from 1948 discussing history of Jews in Warsaw in 1948. There are several Saltzsteins mentioned, but I haven't found a connection (yet).

Finally, I am sure I have left persons out, misspelled names, and have erroneous information. It was never my intent to leave out or offend anyone. Please send all additions and changes.

THE ROLE OF DNA

(Or " A Leap of Faith, DNA, and Sweet Success")

Attempting to trace the family back to further generations becomes more difficult due to many factors. Jews in Poland weren't required to adopt a surname until the early 1800's, many records being destroyed due to wars and fires are some of the largest obstacles facing researchers.

In the first CD, I took a big leap of faith. I was trying to trace the Saltzsteins back as far as possible, and found a record of a Szmul Nosek Zalcsztejn's marriage. I have a handwritten record of the family genealogy from Aunt Sue Folz (nee Saltzstein) from the 1960's listing a Schmiel Nussen Saltzstein as a brother of Favel Saltzstein. I was unable to locate any other similar names, so I took a wild leap and made the presumption that this was "our" family. With Szmul Nosek's marriage record also came the information of his parents' names, and that they were dead. I was then able to trace their death records and go back another generation. I included this information on the last CD, although I've always wondered if my assumptions were correct.

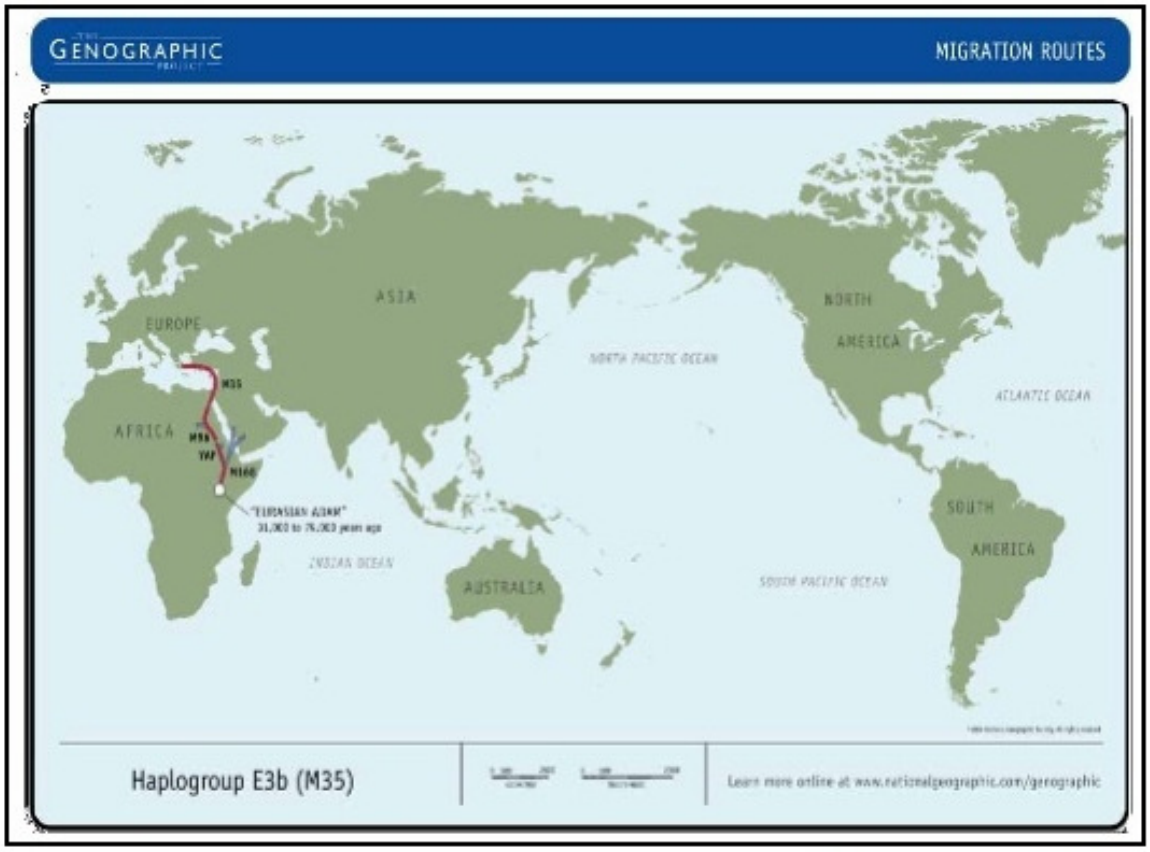

Enter the world of DNA. There are many different companies offering DNA testing to private consumers for many reasons, genealogy among them. The testing usually revolves around the male line and the "Y" chromosome, passed from father to son. As more loci (points) on the Y chromosome are compared and matched, the more likely the most recent common ancestor is within a fewer number of generation. Nowadays, mitochondrial DNA testing is also offered – this is genetic material passed along from the maternal side, so determination of maternal line can be examined. I had my brother Mike start the Saltzstein Family DNA database. I used www.familytreedna.com – their website is very informative, and worth a look. I have had several families now contribute DNA. Some have not panned out, notably a Salzstein family we can trace back to Pennsylvania and Poland. After exchanging research with this family, unfortunately our DNA was not even a close match. This could disprove my theory that all Saltzsteins are related, or perhaps somewhere there was a quiet adoption or illegitimate child, but obviously, those theories are impossible to prove.

Now, for the success story. Prior to my first Saltzstein Family Genealogy CD release, I'd found a Saltzstein family in New York, but had been unable to connect. In 2007, my cousin Bill and Sandy came into contact with this family, and sent the patriarch, Bob Saltzstein, my direction. What I discovered was a wonderful, warm, interested family, and I really hoped we could somehow connect the families. Bob contributed his DNA for comparison, and after sweating it out, weeks later we received the confirmation that his DNA and my brother Mike's DNA was an exact match! This means a 99% certainty within a short generational time frame that we are, indeed, related. And, for the icing on the cake, I obtained a copy of Bob's grandfather's death record: lo and behold, the father of Max is listed as our Smul Nussen! My assumption was correct.

Since then, we have been blessed to get to know Bob, his wife Judy, and their children, Stephen and Susan. They are a wonderfully warm, delightful family who has welcomed us with open arms. We have had the opportunity to visit twice, once in Florida and once in New York, and every visit leaves us wishing for more time together. And their incredible interest and fascination with the family genealogy has certainly fed my ego.

.As time goes on and the record searches are exhausted, I would hope and suspect that DNA databases will provide us with more links.

On the following pages is a summary of the genetic migration of the Saltzstein haplotype. This was part of a large study by The National Geographic Society investigating the history and pattern of human migration. The report from The National Geographic Society is included in its entirety.

THE GENOGRAPHIC PROJECT

Certificate of Y-chromosome DNA testing

In recognition of your participation in the Genographic Project, we hereby certify that

Haplogroup E1b1b1 (M35.1)

The designations for all twelve loci examined for this purpose are listed here, along with the Short Tandem Repeats (STRs) outcome for each.

Haplogroup E1b1b1 (M35.1)

Your Y-chromosome results identify you as a member of haplogroup *E1b1b1 (M35.1).

The genetic markers that define your ancestral history reach back roughly 60,000 years to the first common marker of all non-African men, M168, and follow your lineage to present day, ending with M35.1, the defining marker of haplogroup E1b1b1 (M35.1).

If you look at the map highlighting your ancestors' route, you will see that members of haplogroup E1b1b1 (M35.1) carry the following Y-chromosome markers:

M168 > YAP > M96 > P147 > P177 > P2 > M215 > M35.1

(Less is known about some markers than others. What is known about your journey is reflected below.)

Today, the E1b1b1 (M35.1) line of descent is most heavily represented in Mediterranean populations. Approximately 10 percent of the men in Spain belong to this haplogroup, as do 12 percent of the men in northern Italy, and 13 percent of the men in central and southern Italy. Roughly 20 percent of the men in Sicily belong to this group. In the Balkans and Greece, between 20 to 30 percent of the men belong to E1b1b1 (M35.1), as do nearly 75 percent of the men in North Africa. The haplogroup is rarely found in India or East Asia. Around 10 percent of all European men trace their descent to this line. For example, in Ireland, 3 to 4 percent of the men belong; in England, 4 to 5 percent; Hungary, 7 percent; and Poland, 8 to 9 percent. Nearly 25 percent of Jewish men belong to this haplogroup.

What's a haplogroup, and why do geneticists concentrate on the Y-chromosome in their search for markers? For that matter, what's a marker?

Each of us carries DNA that is a combination of genes passed from both our mother and father, giving us traits that range from eye color and height to athleticism and disease susceptibility. One exception is the Y-chromosome, which is passed directly from father to son, unchanged, from generation to generation.

Unchanged, that is unless a mutation—a random, naturally occurring, usually harmless change—occurs. The mutation, known as a marker, acts as a beacon; it can be mapped through generations because it will be passed down from the man in whom it occurred to his sons, their sons, and every male in his family for thousands of years.

In some instances there may be more than one mutational event that defines a particular branch on the tree. What this means is that any of these markers can be used to determine your particular haplogroup, since every individual who has one of these markers also has the others.

When geneticists identify such a marker, they try to figure out when it first occurred, and in which geographic region of the world. Each marker is essentially the beginning of a new lineage on the family tree of the human race. Tracking the lineages provides a picture of how small tribes of modern humans in Africa tens of thousands of years ago diversified and spread to populate the world.

Your nomadic ancestors followed the good weather and the animals they hunted, although the exact route they followed remains to be determined.

In addition to a favorable change in climate, around this same time there was a great leap forward in modern humans' intellectual capacity. Many scientists believe that the emergence of language gave us a huge advantage over other early human species. Improved tools and weapons, the ability to plan ahead and cooperate with one another, and an increased capacity to exploit resources in ways we hadn't been able to earlier, all allowed modern humans to rapidly migrate to new territories, exploit new resources, and replace other hominids.

YAP: An Ancient Mutation

Fast Facts

Time of Emergence: Roughly 50,000 years ago

Place of Origin: Africa

Climate: Temporary retreat of Ice Age; Africa moves from drought to warmer temperatures and moister conditions

Estimated Number of Homo sapiens: Approximately 10,000

Tools/Skills: Stone tools; earliest evidence of art and advanced conceptual skills

Sub-Saharan populations living today are characterized by one of three distinct Y-chromosome branches on the human tree. Your paternal lineage falls under one of these ancient branches and is referred to by geneticists as YAP.

YAP occurred around northeast Africa and is the most common of the three ancient genetic branches found in sub-Saharan Africa. It is characterized by a mutational event known as an Alu insertion, a 300-nucleotide fragment of DNA which, on rare occasion, gets inserted into different parts of the human genome during cell replication.

A man living around 50,000 years ago, your distant ancestor, acquired this fragment on his Y-chromosome and passed it on to his descendants. Over time this lineage split into two distinct groups. One is found primarily in Africa and the Mediterranean is defined by marker M96. The other group is found in Asia and defined by the M174 mutation.

Your genetic lineage lies within the group that remained close to home, and was carried by men who likely played an integral role in recent cultural and migratory events within Africa.

M96: Moving Out of Africa

Fast Facts

Time of Emergence: 30,000 to 40,000 years ago

Place of Origin: Africa

A haplogroup is defined by a series of markers that are shared by other men who carry the same random mutations. The markers trace the path your ancestors took as they moved out of Africa. It's difficult to know how many men worldwide belong to any particular haplogroup, or even how many haplogroups there are, because scientists simply don't have enough data yet.

One of the goals of the five-year Genographic Project is to build a large enough database of anthropological genetic data to answer some of these questions. To achieve this, project team members are traveling to all corners of the world to collect more than 100,000 DNA samples from indigenous populations. In addition, we encourage you to contribute your anonymous results to the project database, helping our geneticists reveal more of the answers to our ancient past.

Keep checking these pages; as more information is received, more may be learned about your own genetic history.

Your Ancestral Journey: What We Know Now

M168*: Your Earliest Ancestor

Fast Facts

Time of Emergence: Roughly 50,000 years ago

Place of Origin: Africa

Climate: Temporary retreat of Ice Age; Africa moves from drought to warmer temperatures and moister conditions

Estimated Number of Homo sapiens: Approximately 10,000

Tools and Skills: Stone tools; earliest evidence of art and advanced conceptual skills

Skeletal and archaeological evidence suggest that anatomically modern humans evolved in Africa around 200,000 years ago, and began moving out of Africa to colonize the rest of the world around 60,000 years ago.

The man who gave rise to the first genetic marker in your lineage probably lived in northeast Africa in the region of the Rift Valley, perhaps in present-day Ethiopia, Kenya, or Tanzania, some 31,000 to 79,000 years ago. Scientists put the most likely date for when he lived at around 50,000 years ago. His descendants became the only lineage to survive outside of Africa, making him the common ancestor of every non-African man living today.

But why would man have first ventured out of the familiar African hunting grounds and into unexplored lands? It is likely that a fluctuation in climate may have provided the impetus for your ancestors' exodus out of Africa.

The African ice age was characterized by drought rather than by cold. It was around 50,000 years ago that the ice sheets of northern Europe began to melt, introducing a period of warmer temperatures and moister climate in Africa. Parts of the inhospitable Sahara briefly became habitable. As the drought-ridden desert changed to a savanna, the animals hunted by your ancestors expanded their range and began moving through the newly emerging green corridor of grasslands.

Climate: Dry Ice Age

Estimated Number of Homo sapiens: Tens of thousands

Tools/Skills: Upper Paleolithic

The next man in your ancestral lineage was born around 30,000 to 40,000 years ago in northeast Africa and gave rise to marker M96. The origins of M96 are unclear; further data may shed light on the precise origin of this lineage.

What is known is that there were two great waves of migration out of Africa. The first small groups of people left around 60,000 years ago and followed a coastal route that eventually reached Australia. The second exodus occurred beginning around 50,000 years ago, heading north. The bulk of these travelers were descendants of a man born with marker M89, a group we'll call the Middle Eastern Clan. Some 90 to 95 percent of all non-Africans today are descendants of the Middle Eastern Clan.

You are descended from an ancient African lineage that chose to move north into the Middle East. Your kinsmen may have accompanied the Middle Eastern Clan as they followed the great herds of large mammals north through the grassy plains and savannas of the Sahara gateway.

Alternatively, a group of your ancestors may have undertaken their own migration at a later date, following the same route previously traveled by the Middle Eastern Clan peoples.

Beginning about 40,000 years ago, the climate shifted once again and became colder and more arid. Drought hit Africa and the grasslands reverted to desert; for the next 20,000 years, the Saharan Gateway was effectively closed. With the desert impassable, your ancestors had two options: remain in the Middle East, or move on. Retreat back to the home continent was not an option.

M35.1*: Neolithic Farmers

Fast Facts

Time of Emergence: 20,000 years ago

Place of Origin: Middle East

Climate: Ice Age

Estimated Number of Homo sapiens: Hundreds of thousands

Tools/Skills: Upper Paleolithic-Neolithic

The final common ancestor in your haplogroup, the man who gave rise to marker M35.1, was born around 20,000 years ago in the Middle East. His descendants were among the first farmers and helped spread agriculture from the Middle East into the Mediterranean region.

At the end of the last ice age around 10,000 years ago, the climate changed once again and became more conducive to plant production. This probably helped spur the Neolithic Revolution, the point at which the human way of living changed from nomadic hunter-gatherers to settled agriculturists.

The early farming successes in the Fertile Crescent of the Middle East beginning around 8,000 years ago spawned population booms and encouraged migration throughout much of the Mediterranean world.

Control over their food supply marks a major turning point for the human species. Rather than small clans of 30 to 50 people who were highly mobile and informally organized, agriculture brought the first trappings of civilization. Occupying a single territory required more complex social organization, moving from the kinship ties of a small tribe to the more elaborate relations of a larger community. It spurred trade, writing, calendars, and pioneered the rise of modern sedentary communities and cities.

These ancient farmers, your ancestors, helped bring the Neolithic Revolution into the Mediterranean.

This is where your genetic trail, as we know it today, ends. However, be sure to revisit these pages. As additional data are collected and analyzed, more will be learned about your place in the history of the men and women who first populated the Earth. We will be updating these stories throughout the life of the project.

FOREFATHERS

Our furthest traceable ancestor was Icek Zalcsztein. He had at least one son, Lejbka Zalcsztejn. We know that Lejbka had the following children, in birth order: Favel, Szmul Nosek, Ejzyk, Szejna, and Yeruhkia. Per Lejbka's death record, he had 6 surviving children at the time of his death – thus there could be more children who had died before he did.

Of Lejbka's children, the ones who are the most directly important to us are Hertz Fayvel (Favel) and Szmul Nosek. These are the two patriarchs from whom every one of us has descended. Interestingly, we have Favel's signature many times from the Polish Vital Records, yet no record of Szmul Nosek's signature exists on similar records.

Following is the descendant list of Icek Zalcsztejn. It may seem overwhelming initially, but hopefully will provide a good summary of where we all fit in this family tree.
At the end of this book is the kinship report for Icek Zalcztejn which lists each of our individual relationship to our forefather.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF PLOCK, POLAND

Plock, Poland is located in the Mazovia Province. Mazovia is in the center of Poland, in the plain between the Warta and Vistula Rivers. The city of Plock is one of Poland's earliest towns, built approximately 900 A.D. In the 11th century, Plock was the seat of the district governor for the king of united Poland. The major development of Plock occurred in the 12th century, and it was invaded numerous times during this century. By the 16th century, Plock was the most important town in Poland after Krakow. The decline of Plock began in the 16th century, principally because it could not compete with Warsaw, the new capital. After the second division of Poland in 1793, Plock was incorporated into the Prussian portion.

Jews were present in Plock from before 1237. Plock is one of the oldest Jewish towns in Poland. Typical jobs were money lending and securities. By the 16th century, the trade changed to trades and crafts. In 1555, in reaction to attempts to limit Jewish trade, King Sigismund II Augustus granted the Jews the same economic rights as other citizens. In 1576, King Stephen Bathory prohibited hindering business pursuits of the Jewish population. In the 16th century, records showed 6 Jewish physicians in Plock. The synagogue was opened in 1534. There were many uprisings against the Jews -- 1534, 1570, 1579, 1590, and 1656. In the 18th century, the community suffered hostilities by the nobility and the Church. Under Prussian rule in the 19th century, the community grew larger, composing 49 % of the population of Plock, and as a consequence, the Jews were moved and restricted to separate quarters. This remained in effect until 1862. In the19th century, common trades were transportation, trade, and textiles. Plock had a government school where Jewish children learned Hebrew and Russian. In 1872, the first Jewish hospital was built, and, in 1888, a Jewish school was built.

By the start of World War II, there were approximately 10,000 Jewish citizens in Plock. On September 9, 1939, the Germans entered. The majority of the Jewish citizenry had fled to Gabin, but they gradually returned. Forced labor was immediately enforced. In response to night raids conducted by the Germans, some Jews filed a complaint to the authorities. In direct response, 180 Jews were executed. The Jewish community of Plock was destroyed by 2 deportations February 20 and February 28, 1941. Most of the deportees died in camps. The majority were sent to Dzialdowo. Only 100 persons survived, most of who immigrated to USSR. In October 1949, a memorial to the victims of the Holocaust was erected in Plock.

HISTORY OF VITAL RECORDS IN POLAND

Vital record registration began in 1808 in the Duchy of Warsaw, and the records were kept in what's termed "Napoleonic format" -- paragraph style. 1808 - 1825, Jewish registrations and other religious denominations were recorded in the Catholic civil transcripts. In 1826, separate registers were kept for each religion, and recorded in the Polish language until 1868. Afterwards, they were recorded in Russian until 1918, when Poland once more regained it's independence.

~1795: Third and final partition of Poland -- Poland ceases to exist as a nation. Poland split between Prussia, Russia, and Austria.

~1805: West Galacia -- Jews required by Austria to take a surname

~1807: Duchy of Warsaw created by Napoleon (formerly a Prussian partition territory)

~1808: Duchy of Warsaw -- civil registration begins, every item listed in Catholic registry

~1809: Napoleon defeats Austria

~1810: Duchy of Warsaw -- Civil registration begins in West Galacia

~1815: Napoleon defeated -- Kingdom of Poland now under Russian contro

~1821: Russian government mandates Jews to take surname

~1826: Separate registration for each religion

~1863: Uprising against Russia

~1868: Vital records kept in Russian

~1918: End of WWII, Poland reborn, records kept in Polish

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER WHEN READING THE POLISH VITAL RECORDS

1) Remember that in 19th century Polish records, names were spelled phonetically. This accounts for the enormous number of spellings of the name "Saltzstein". Also, as Poland was "annexed" by Russia in 1815, there are also Russian spellings of the name.

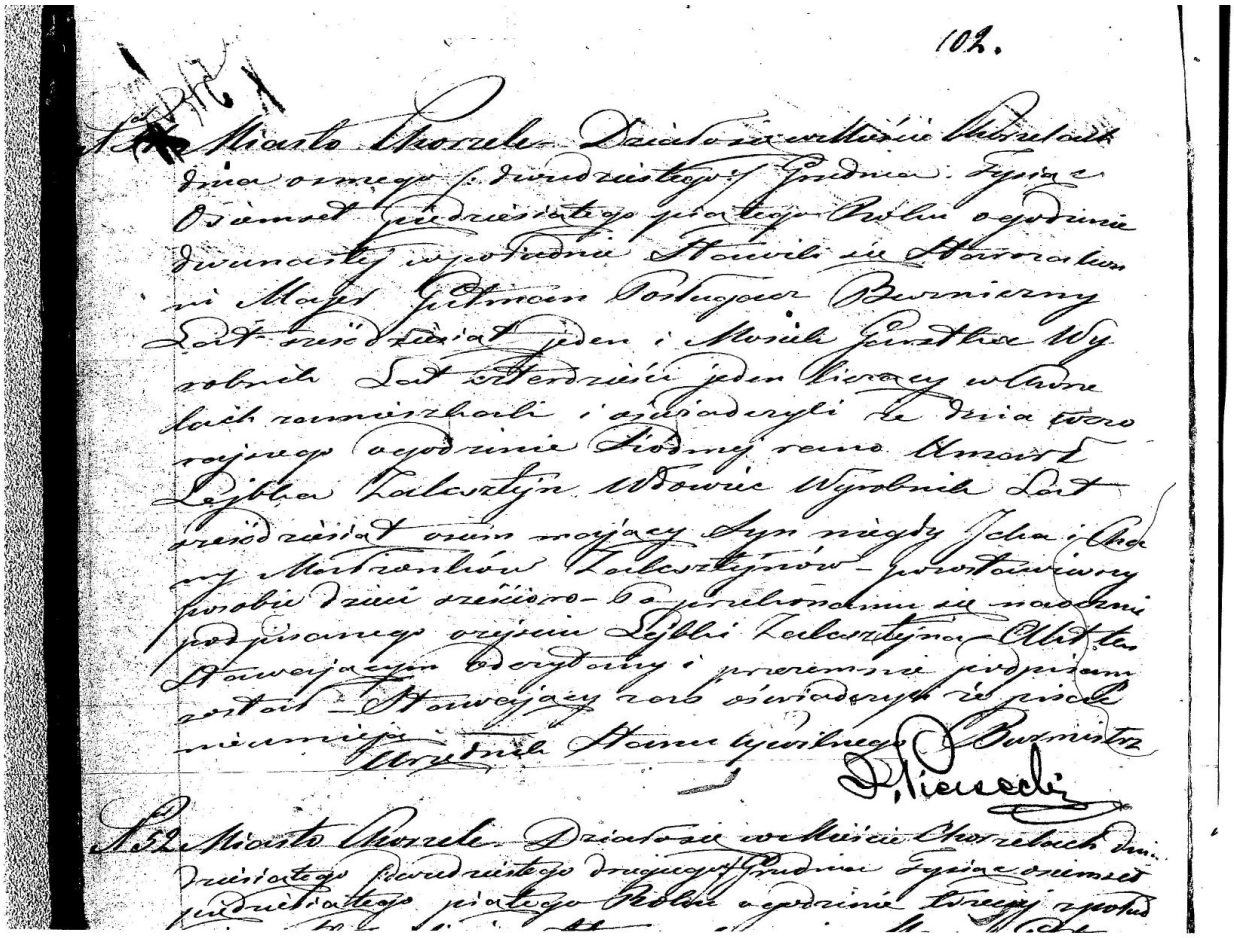

2) First names often look incorrect to our Western eyes. For example, if you look at the first Polish record, it is Iciek Jakob (Isadore's) birth record. To our Western ears, Isaac may be a more logical translation of his name. Indeed, his name comes from the Yiddish root word "Yitzhak" meaning Isaac. "Isadore" would appear to be more directly translated from the Yiddish "Yissakhar". The name must have been Westernized at some point, and adopted by him.
On the same vital record, Isadore's father's name is given as “Hersz Fayvel Zaltzszteyn”. Subsequent documents show the first name being dropped. It was not uncommon for Jewish men to have two first names, the first being dropped later. Hil Meyer Saltzstein is another example of this.

3) Chaja, Haia, and Haj are all different spelling of Chaya. In Polish, “ch” and “h” are different letters and have slightly different sounds, but they are very similar.

4) Often, I will have noted two different dates for the same event. If you look at Isadore's birth record, it says “22 Jan/3 Feb 1843”. This is due to the two calendar systems, Julian and Gregorian. In the 16th century, Pope Gregory X III commissioned a new calendar to more closely reflect the actual length of the year. It was not until the Communist revolution in 1917 that Russia switched completely from Julian to Gregorian calendar, thus Poland adopted the same. If the computer program didn't allow both dates to be inputted, I simply used the Gregorian (second) date.

FAVEL (HERSZ FAIBUS) SALTZSTEIN

Favel was the elder of the two patriarchs from whom we are all descended. We know that Chaya gave birth to Isadore when she was 19, and he was most likely her first child. Certainly, he was the first born in Plock. This puts Chaya's birth approximately 1814. She had an incredible 8 more children, the last (Abraham Louis "Sr") born in 1858, 15 years after the birth of his oldest brother. The childhood mortality rate was shockingly high, and Chaya lost two children to cholera. We have multiple (phonetic) spellings of her maiden name, amongst them "Szoszek", "Szasko", and "Shyshek". We can almost get a feeling for what the name sounded like. Almost. In her adult children's death records, we can see that her name was Americanized, and changed to Clara and Charlotte, and the maiden name changed to "Bornstein". I believe this to be purely due to inaccuracies in verbal history.

On every record from Poland, we also can easily pick out Favel's signature. It is very distinctive, and shows he must have had some schooling. We also see his son Isadore's signature on some vital records as well. Ester Ryfka also signed her marriage record, but the signature is very choppy and broken, and suggests she had some schooling. I have not come across any such other signatures on the rest of the vital records.

Before she died, Charlotte Fox (great-granddaughter of Favel) told me she recalled photos of Favel and Chaya hanging in her grandmothers's apartment, but was unaware of where these wound up. Last year, Amy Lippman (great-great granddaughter of Jachewet and great-great-great granddaughter of Favel) sent me a treasure box full of old photos from her family. Amongst these were 2 photos in sepia tone, stored together, and photographed in Poland. The gentleman in particular bears a striking resemblance to Isadore Saltzstein,although not closely enough to be the same person. Indeed, facial recognition software grouped the photo together with Isadore's. .The woman is definitely not Sara (Isadore's wife). It would make sense that the second eldest daughter (Jachewet) would hold precious photos of her parents when she left Poland for the United States. Thus, I do believe these to be photos of Favel and Chaya Saltzstein.

An abbreviated descendant list follows. Due to the sheer size, I kept to the first three generations. The descendants are followed in much further detail in the subsequent family groups.

Photos, presumed to be Favel and Chaya Saltzstein

Signature, Favel Saltzstein

First, let me be absolutely clear – I certainly am not trying to accuse an ancestor of illicit behavior! I simply have questions arising from the discovery of this record.

There would have to have been a second Favel Saltzstein living in Plock born about the same time for this to not be our Favel, and I have not come across any other individual with this first name.

Perhaps the mother's name was wildly misreported? Chaya bore Laja in September 1857. That birth was a late registration, so it is possible an incorrect date was entered, but we know that Chaya also bore a son (Abraham Louis), born December 1858 (not a late registration). This would assume not only an incorrectly entered mother's name, but also an incorrectly entered birth year, and an immediate pregnancy following the birth of Abraham Louis. Alternatively, perhaps the father's name was misreported. Note the record is not signed with Favel's flourish.

There certainly are a lot of assumptions needed for this record to be from "our" Favel and Chaya, and shows a possibility that Hynda Mochla was an illegitimate child of Favel.

Her name has not occurred in any subsequent records.

ISADORE JACOB (ICIEK JAKOB) SALTZSTEIN

Iciek Jakob was born on Feb 3, 1843 in Plock, Poland, presumably the first child of Favel and Chaya Saltzstein. Isadore's name has been spelled both with an "a" as well as a second "i". I have tried to be consistent, but, as you will see, there are discrepancies throughout. He married Sura Goldberg on March 23 1863. Together, they had 9 children, only 5 of whom survived childhood. His first child, Byna, succumbed to cholera. While cause of death wasn't always listed on death records, cholera was a common culprit in the 19th century. His son Abraham Leybuysz (AL) was born Oct 11, 1865. Interestingly, AL's birth date was one of the very few I came across that was consistently reported and recorded accurately throughout his life (except for his death certificate). AL was the first of their children to survive childhood. It is important to note the 19 year span between Isadore and Sara's first and last child.

Sara was born in the town of Nasielsk, Poland, a town within the same province as Plock. She was born in 1862. She married Isadore in March, 1863, aged 21 years. There is no record of the birth of their first child, Byna, in 1864, a girl who died at 3 years old. Sara had 9 children, 5 of whom survived. Ben was born in 1884, making Sara a mom again at age 41. There are no birth records of her last 2 children, Yetta and Ben. It was quite common for people to register births late in Poland, although it doesn't appear that Isadore and Sara ever registered late (as Chaya and Favel did). I assume these birth records are lost. If it weren't for Uncle Ben's memory, I would've wondered if Yetta and Ben were actually born elsewhere.

Family lore has it that Isadore, Sara, Ben, Yetta, and Joe all immigrated to the USA in 1890. However, as often happens with verbal history, this wasn't quite true. Sara, Joe, Yetta, and Ben all came across on the “Salier” and landed in Baltimore on 23 December 1890. There is a photocopy of the passenger log in the tree, and Isadore is not on the log. Isadore was already in practice as an optician in 1890, so it's obvious he came to the USA earlier. As of this date, I have still not found his immigration record. Sara and her three youngest children left out of the Port of Bremen, and arrived in Baltimore on 23 Dec 1890. One can only imagine the courage this woman had to leave everything she knew to travel alone with her children to America.

Isadore and Sara (as well as Yetta) settled in Detroit, Michigan. They remained there until the time of Isadore's death in 1915. Sometime after his death, Sara moved to Milwaukee, where she lived until her death in 1924. They are both buried at Beth Olem Cemetery in Detroit, a cemetery around which the GMC Poletown Plant is built. The cemetery is open only twice a year, the Sunday before Rosh Hashanna, and Passover. There are no other Saltzsteins in this cemetery.

*Please note: I limited the list of Isadore’s descendants to three generations due to sheer size. All individuals are included with their own more immediate family group.

HIDDEN CEMETERY AWAKENS BRIEFLY TO MODERN WORLD PUBLIC IS WELCOME FOR 8 HOURS A YEAR

Detroit Free Press - Detroit, Mich.
Author: Bill McGraw
March 25, 2002

To reach one of the most unusual graveyards in Michigan, you first must plan ahead. It's open only eight hours a year.

Then, because it is located on the grounds of the General Motors Corp. Poletown plant on the Hamtramck-Detroit border, you have to contact security to find out how to get in.

After a guard unlocks the heavy gate at the truck entrance, you drive past loading dock F, a trash-collection area, a test track and a security checkpoint.

Beyond some railroad tracks is Beth Olem Cemetery.
Surrounded by an 8-foot wall and dotted with gnarled old trees, Beth Olem is a Jewish cemetery that opened during the Civil War and received its last body just after World War II.

The only remnant of the once-thriving Poletown neighborhood demolished by the city in the early 1980s to make room for the luxury car factory, Beth Olem opens for four hours on the Sundays before Passover and Rosh Hashanah.
A handful of visitors showed up Sunday. Some were paying respects to distant relatives. One was a professional genealogist, doing research for a client in California. One has an interest in the area's history.

Most of the graves seem to date from the 1880s to World War I. For many of the people buried in Beth Olem, there is no one left on Earth who would have been alive when they were alive.

"Fewer and fewer people are going to come -- these are our great-grandparents," said one visitor, Brian Weinstein. "Their own children are dead."

Weinstein, 64, of Washington, D.C., joined his cousin, Dian Wright, 64, of Lansing and her son, Terry Wright, 41, of Essex, Vt., to visit the graves of Isaac and Blume Gottlieb. They think they found them, but they could not be sure, because nearly a century of Michigan weather had obscured the markers.

"It could be our ancestor, and it could be someone else's," Weinstein said. Isaac Gottlieb, who emigrated from Latvia and wound up in Traverse City, died in Detroit in 1908 after surgery. Blume Gottlieb died in 1917.

The marker was topped by a crown and contained Hebrew script. Weinstein and the Wrights did graphite etchings of the faded lettering and participated in a brief ceremony. They placed the customary stones on top of the grave markers and recited a selection of Psalm 119.

Then they turned toward other graves and recited a prayer for all the deceased, which said in part:
"O God, full of compassion, Thou who dwellest on high! Grant perfect rest beneath the sheltering wings of Thy presence. . . ."
There are 1,400 people buried in Beth Olem, according to Clover Hill Park Cemetery in Royal Oak, which manages Beth Olem for its owner, Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield.

Inside the walls of the well-tended grounds, the gravestones form a roll call of longtime families: Wolf, Goldman, Blumberg, Sable, Cohen, Fisher, Jalan, Williams. . . .

On one marker, the words are gone, and all that remains is a photograph of a striking woman, seemingly in her 30s. The photo is protected by a semicircular, purplish glass. She is wearing a high-collared, pleated blouse; her dark hair is in a bun.

Next door to this tranquil history loom the tubing and conveyors and smokestacks of the massive auto plant, which belches steam. A rumbling locomotive idles in the distance.

To the west is an abandoned, seven-story factory, its windows dirty and broken. Ring-necked pheasants strut across the plant grounds, and two Canada geese with foul tempers honked at visitors who approached the cemetery Sunday.

"This place is one big photo opportunity. The contrast is outstanding," said another visitor, Paul Tylendea, 26, a Detroiter who studied the neighborhood for a master's degree from Jagiellonian University in Poland.

Beth Olem is a survivor. In the 19th Century, Detroit simply paved over its graveyards as the city grew. In 1980, when the city cleared 3,438 residents and tore down more than 1,300 homes, factories and institutions for the plant, officials worked out the plan to preserve the graves and open the cemetery twice a year.

"This place is awesome," said Deborah Wright, 51, of Royal Oak, who was visiting the grave of her great-great grandmother, Asna Applebaum, who died in 1907. "It's like stepping back into time."

ABRAHAM LOUIS (ABRAHAM LEYBUSZ) SALTZSTEIN "JR"

AL was born October 11, 1865 in Plock, Poland. He was the oldest of Isadore and Sara's surviving children. AL was the first one of his family to leave Poland. He immigrated to the US at age 19 aboard the "Lessing", and arrived in New York Harbor on August 16, 1886. There is a photocopy of the passenger log in the family tree, and we can see that he was the 16th person off the ship once it arrived. His occupation is listed as "watchmaker", which is consistent with his father being an optician, and his uncle a jeweler.

It is hard to uncover any proof of where exactly AL spent his time right after arriving; we do know that, by early 1888, he was in Washington DC, where he met and married Fannie Cohen April 29, 1888.

AL and Fannie had 7 children, the first two of whom (Rose and Ferdinand) died in childhood. Kathie Saltzstein recalls being told they died of typhus. Rose's death certificate shows that she died of pneumonia and pleurisy, which can be a complication of typhus. No birth or death record of Ferdinand has been found. Subsequently, Harry and Jerome were born in Washington, D.C. The family moved briefly to Detroit, where Sidney was born. Felix, Irving, and Florence were all born in Milwaukee where the family remained.

Gleaning from all the family gazettes and oral history, AL was a very proper, studious, religious man, who instilled the importance of family and religion into his children. He is remembered as being proud of from where he came, and where he got. He was a member of the Order of the Knights of Pythias, and had a beautifully engraved sword for ceremonies. He was a great salesman, concerned citizen, a good father in a rather demanding way, and he could be imperious. He is also remembered as a 19th century head of the Jewish family, including a certain throne-like chair with red cushions upon which he'd sit. He spoke with a central European accent, so "fruit of the vine" sounded more like "fruit of the wine". He was "damn opinionated", and was known as AL for business, but was called Lou by his wife and Uncle Lou by his nieces and nephews. He is described as being both smart and wise. He was also the first known Saltzstein red-head. Fannie is recalled as living in a Milwaukee hotel with a companion and babysitting for the grandchildren and enjoying reading them books.

Kathie Saltzstein recalls asking about the family's roots in Poland and being told there were no opportunities for Jews in Poland, so AL came to the United States. She recalls asking Uncle Ben about going back to Poland to see the town from which the family came, and Uncle Ben stating "Why would you want to go to that place?". People in the family referred to Poland as "The Old Country" and did not have fond memories or thoughts of it.

AL was greatly admired and respected by his children. He in turn took great pleasure in their accomplishments as well as those of his grandchildren. The many grandchildren recall growing up in a big extended family in Milwaukee. Harry became a physician, the first of many Saltzstein doctors. He founded a community clinic in Detroit to provide medical care to the Jewish population in 1922. This was Sinai Clinic that went on to become Sinai Hospital, and is now Grace-Sinai Hospital. There reportedly is still a portrait of Harry hanging in Sinai-Grace Hospital. He also wrote several books, including ones on the care and treatment of cancer as well as the history of Sinai Clinic. He also published "The Saltzstein Family Gazette" with regularity. Mary Cosper remembers a story of Harry being pulled over for speeding in Detroit and telling the police officer that his uncles just told him he was driving too quickly. He was in his 70's at that time. Harry is recalled as a real character, and often brought gifts from his grateful patients to the grandchildren. One time he got off the plane with a large carving knife in his pocket, a gift from a patient. He is remembered as being curious about everything, and once joined Babe and Joan's family on a trip to the Rocky Mountains. He studied up on the area, and every time the family would ask "Where's Harry?", he was standing on a ledge talking to a group of tourists about the site – they thought he was a tour guide!

Jerome was an insurance salesman. He brought up his four teenage children himself after the death of his wife. I still recall him blowing cigar smoke circles for my brother and I to "catch" with our fingers.

Felix lived in Chicago and ran a summer camp, affectionately known as "Flick's-by-the-Sea". He is remembered as being lively, funny and a cheerful presence. He changed the spelling of his name to "Salston". Rumor had it the change was to attract more business opportunities.

Babe (Irving) was a civil engineer and was proud to be successful in the construction industry. He was nicknamed "Babe" as he was the youngest boy – a nickname he hated, but it stuck with him.

Sid is remembered by Mary Cosper and Kathie Saltzstein as visiting frequently while riding his horse and helping himself to leftovers in the refrigerator. He had a penchant for giving everyone nicknames.

The brothers and Flossie are all recalled as being incredibly close and best friends to one another. There was a family tradition of visiting everyone and often getting together. There were large parties when an important birthday was reached, and there would be lots of talk, special songs, speeches and laughter. If anyone had a problem - financial or otherwise -- the brothers would gather at Uncle Ben's house and discuss what to do about it. Everyone in the family was taken care of. This was AL's legacy to his family.

AL died on the train while en route from California to Milwaukee. My father has told me the conductor listed the state of death as Illinois so there would be only one state border to cross with a body. He is buried at Greenwood Cemetery, Milwaukee Wisconsin.

LESSING

The steamship LESSING was built by A. Stephen & Sons, Glasgow, for the Adler (Eagle) Line, and launched on 29 February 1874. 3,496 tons; 114,32 x 12,20 meters (375.1 x 40 feet, length x beam); straight bow, 1 funnel, 2 masts; iron construction, screw propulsion, service speed 13 knots; passenger accommodation: 90 1st-, 100 2nd-, and 800 steerage-class. 28 May 1874, maiden voyage, Hamburg-New York. 4 May 1875, last voyage, Hamburg-Plymouth-Cherbourg-Hamburg (last voyage of the Adler Line). 1875, purchased by Hamburg American Line. 1 March 1876, first voyage, Hamburg-Havre-New York. 1882, rebuilt; 2 funnels. 22 April 1888, last voyage, Hamburg-Havre-New York. 1888, became NERTHE (Messageries Maritimes). 1897, scrapped at Marseilles [Noel Reginald Pixell Bonsor, North Atlantic Seaway; An Illustrated History of the Passenger Services Linking the Old World with the New (2nd ed.; Jersey, Channel Islands: Brookside Publications), vol. 1 (1975), p. 392. Pictured in Michael J. Anuta, Ships of Our Ancestors (Menominee, MI: Ships of Our Ancestors, 1983), p. 174, courtesy of the Peabody Essex Museum, East India Square, Salem, MA 01970.

The steamship LESSING, Captain Voss, made its regular call at Havre, from which it sailed for New York on 19 November 1881. The North Atlantic was pounded by a series of hurricanes in November 1881, which severely damaged many vessels. In one of these hurricanes, on 23 November, in lon. 21 W, the LESSING suffered severe damage, inter alia breaking her rudder head in two places. The crew used steel cables to steady the rudder, and set a course for Plymouth, Cornwall, where she arrived, under tow, on 29 November; one of her quartermasters was seriesly injured and expected to die. The cargo and steerage passengers remained in Plymouth until transferred to the steamship RHENANIA, Captain Barends, which sailed from Hamburg on 5 December, and made a special call at Plymouth on 11 December. The RHENANIA, carrying the steerage passengers from the LESSING, reached New York on 25 December 1881; you will find the passenger manifest for this voyage in National Archives Microfilm Publication M237, roll 445, a copy of which you can borrow through AGLL, any LDS (Mormon) Family History Center (Family History Library microfilm #1027015), or Interlibrary Loan. The LESSING underwent essential repairs at Plymouth and then returned to Hamburg, where she was rebuilt in 1882. {Posted to the Emigration-Ships Mailing List by Michael Palmer - 14 November 1997]

ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

What They Are Doing and What They Say.

"When business is quiet, hustle, and when it is good, keep right on hustling." Such is the golden rule as adopted by our enterprising jeweler, Mr. A. L. Saltzstein, jr., 505 Seventh street northwest. It has been Mr. Saltzstein's privilege to study out and develop many new features in the jewelry business, and as a result he is reaping a harvest of dollars. His latest move is the inauguration of a grand quarterly sale, which began last Friday morning, and will continue until April 10, inclusive. During these ten days his entire stock is subjected to discounts that are truly surprising when it is remembered that nothing but reliable goods are ever sold over his counters. French and American clocks, watches, diamond rings, earrings, breastpins, scarfpins, cuff-buttons, gold chains, bracelets, sterling silver plated ware, opera-glasses, canes, and umbrellas are all reduced in price for these ten days. The public is quick to perceive the benefits of a sale of this kind, and Mr. Saltzstein's Jewelry Palace will doubtless be the objective point for many of our shoppers to-morrow. It is a great opportunity, and will merit the most liberal patronage.

A. L. Saltzstein, Leader Here for More Than 50 Years, Dies Suddenly

Death Comes at 79 to an Outstanding Figure in Local Religious and Philanthropic Affairs; Was Also Nationally Known for Activities

A. L. Saltzstein, for over 50 years one of the leaders of the Jewish community in Milwaukee, died suddenly on Wednesday on a train en route from California to this city. He was 79 years old.

During his long residence in the city, Mr. Saltzstein was in the forefront in many Jewish activities. He took a particular interest in religious matters and was one of the guiding spirits of Congregation Emanu-El and its merged successor, Congregation Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun. He served as president of the congregations for a period totalling 16 years.

Shortly after coming to Milwaukee in 1896 from Washington, D. C., he embarked on a period of communal activity that was abated only slightly within recent years. Ill health caused him to curtail some of his work, but he maintained an active interest in a variety of causes until his death.

Pioneer in Philanthropy

One of his earliest acts was to organize and head the Provident Loan Society, one of the early charitable organizations in the community.

In 1903 he became president of the Hebrew Relief Society which was organized in 1867 to carry on social service work and which later became the Jewish Social Service Association. He was one of the founders of the Federated Jewish Charities in 1902 and served several terms as president. When the Federation gave way to the Milwaukee Jewish Welfare Fund, he became a director of the latter organization.

In 1926 Mr. Saltzstein was Wisconsin state chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, which raised over $300,000, the largest sum ever raised until that time in the community. In 1923 he was chairman of the Keren Hayesod campaign for Palestine which exceeded its quota of $50,000 by several thousand dollars. He took a leading part as chairman, co-chairman, or chairman of initial gifts in prac-

Recommendations for Peace Treaty Clauses Submitted to Big Four

Washington — (JTA) — The World Jewish Congress has demanded that the Conference of Foreign Ministers which is now taking place in Moscow, hold a formal hearing on Jewish demands on the German peace treaty before negotiations on the pact are concluded, it was reported at a press conference here by Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, head of the political department of the organization.

"Such a hearing," he said, "would help to re-establish the confidence of the Jewish people in the process of democratic justice." The Congress' request has been forwarded to the governments of France, Britain, Russia and the United States, he said, together with a number of recommendations for clauses to be embodied in the treaty, which in-tically every major campaign for local, national or overseas purposes for over 40 years.

Helped Found Jewish Agency

Nationally, he was a well known figure in Jewish circles. He was a member of the executive board of the Union of Hebrew Congregations and of the executive committee of the Joint Distribution Committee.

In 1929 he joined Louis Marshall, Felix M. Warburg and other national leaders at the famous conference in Zurich, Switzerland, as one of the founders of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, of which he became a national board member. He was also the Wisconsin representative of the American Jewish Committee for a number of years.

Mr. Saltzstein was born in Poland on October 11, 1867, and came in 1884 to Washington, D. C., where he took as his bride Miss Fannie Cohen.

Coming to Milwaukee as a representative of the Templar Insurance company, he shortly thereafter became general agent for the New England Life Insurance company, in which capacity he has remained ever since.

On his 70th birthday he was the guest of honor at a dinner at which messages of greeting were received from throughout the nation.

Leaves Large Family

With him on the train at the time of his death were his wife, his eldest son, Dr. Harry C. Saltzstein of Detroit, and his daughter, Mrs. Florence Kreger, also of Detroit.

Other survivors are his sons, Jerome C., Sidney C., Irving D. and Felix C., the latter of Chicago: two brothers, Benjamin F. of Milwaukee and Joseph of Grand Rapids, Mich.; and 13 grandchildren.

Rabbis Samuel Hirshberg and Joseph L. Baron officiated at the funeral services held Friday afternoon at the Philip J. Weiss chapel, 1901 N. Farwell avenue. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

Messages extolling the life and work of A. L. Saltzstein were received from the following persons who were closely associated with him in his work at Congregation Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun. The messages follow:

Rabbi Samuel Hirshberg — "For over half a century he was one of the outstanding leaders in our community. At all times he was ready to do his part and he always gave largely of his means and his time. I feel his passing as a great, personal loss."

Rabbi Joseph L. Baron — "A faithful Jews and a loyal American, A. L. Saltzstein served and represented Milwaukee Jewry with distinction for nearly half a century. Within my memory, whenever the name of Milwaukee came up in the councils of our national organizations, such as the Union of American Hebrew Congregations or the Joint Distribution Committee or the Jewish Agency for Palestine of which he was a founder, it was always linked with the name of A. L. Saltzstein.

"He was a tower of strength, of dignity, of honor in his family, in his profession and in his city. His presence will be greatly missed at Jewish functions in our midst, but his influence will abide as a benediction in our Temple and in our community."

George P. Ettenheim, president of the congregation — "I knew Mr. Saltzstein for well over 35 years and during all that time I found him always ready to be of service, particularly in matters affecting the congregation. He exemplified all that was best in Jewish life and his passing will leave a void in our community."

Bert C. Broude, former president of the congregation — "He was tremendously interested in the Jewish faith and through his work in the congregation sought to advance that faith. He was always pleading for more ceremonialism in our services and was anxious to make religion beautiful and meaningful, particularly to children.

"His own conception of 'zedokah' may be found in the fact that in the early days of the Hebrew Relief Society he often came down to help with the janitorial service before going to his own business."

Notice of death, Milwaukee Journal, March 21, 1947

Abraham Louis Saltzstein

He was a proud and faithful Jew, ever ready to serve his people and synagog, always solicitous about their dignity and welfare, reverent toward Jewish learning and tradition, liberal in response to human need, weaving the pattern of his religious spirit and genial hospitality in the fabric of his home.

Our congregation and community recognized his leaderhip, elected him to their highest offices of trust and responsibility, and called on him to represent them in the councils of national agencies. His mind and heart, his energy and sense of consecration helped to mould the youthful, growing house of Israel in Milwaukee.

Many objects in our Temple will remind us of A. L. Saltzstein: the ornaments on the scrolls which he brought from the Holy Land for Mrs. A. W. Rich in 1925; the Jewish Agency for Palestine Delegates folder in our Museum, which he brought from Zurich in 1929; the special collection on Poland in our Library, dedicated to him on his seventy-fifth birthday; the symbolic panel designs in our sanctuary, which he helped to install, and which he hoped to publish some day in illustrated book form.

And in the hearts of his children, of his friends and fellow-workers, as in the heart of Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun, his memory will be enshrined as a loving benediction.

Meyer Saltzstein was my uncle, my father's brother. He was the first of our family to leave Russia and migrate to this country. This was in the late 70's or the very early 80's.

A. L. Saltzstein was my Uncle Abe, my father's younger brother. He followed shortly after Uncle Meyer.

A. L. Saltzstein was my oldest brother and he came next. As soon as he settled in Washington, D.C., he went about the business of seeing to it that the rest of his family came to join him. In rapid sequence, my father and my brother Charles arrived. It was by no means easy in those days, the early 80's, to migrate. With hostile borders to cross and many other hardships and little money, it was quite an undertaking.

My brother Charles remained here with my brother Louis, and my father again undertook all the hardships - crossed the Atlantic again (in steerage) and crossed all the hostile borders, so that he could bring the rest of his family (my sister Yetta, my brother Joe, my mother and me) to this country. He successfully crossed the borders and the Atlantic (again in steerage) and we all arrived in Washington, D.C. where my brothers A.L. and Charles awaited us - this was in 1888. Of course, much of this information is from hearsay as I was 4 at that time.

All of this is merely historical - but I do want to say something about my brother A. L. - perhaps because I want the members of my family to know him - and perhaps so that those members of the family who did not know him may learn a little about this man as a brother - father - grandfather - great-grandfather - husband and son. In all of these categories he was the ideal.

As to family loyalty - he was a mere boy of seventeen when he came to this country as an immigrant. His first concern was to bring the rest of his family out of the conditions then existing in Russia - no mean undertaking for a boy to bring a father, mother, three brothers and a sister across the borders of Europe and the Atlantic.

Fortunately, my parents had been able to give my brother a fine education and at 17 he could read and write Hebrew, Yiddish, Russian and Polish. He was equipped to meet the burdens of life and did. He quickly learned how to read and write English.

His family came and arrived in Washington. From that time on wherever he went he wanted his family to be with him. I do not mean his immediate family - wife and children - but his father, mother, sister and brothers. When he moved to Detroit, they followed him - when he moved to Milwaukee, they followed him.

He was a loving husband and father. He made every sacrifice for his family - always provided the best schools for his children and educated six through college.

He participated in all community activities - gave liberally of his resources and time. He was an outstanding citizen.

When I graduated from college, I came to Milwaukee and lived with him and his wife (about whom I may write at some other time.) During that time I was not treated by my brother as a brother or by my sister-in-law as a brother-in-law, but as a son on complete equality with their own sons - and perhaps that was the beginning of the fine relationship that has existed throughout the years between his children and myself - we have been and are more like brothers than uncle and nephews.

He was not a rich man, quite the contrary. He left no estate - but he left something greater and richer. He left a heritage of which his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren can be proud - of much greater value than if he had left an estate - a heritage which not many people can claim.

Here was a great man, and his brothers, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren can point with pride and say this was my father -

Dear Lord and Father, humbly do we dedicate this sacred ark in memory of Julie Saltzstein, Sidney Saltzstein, Abraham L. Saltzstein. Formed only of metal, paint and wood, it holds a scroll made of ink, sinew and parchment. But in this temporal mold there is captured for man's service and sanctification that pure spirit which is the undying word of God. Of such is the human soul, caught for one crumbling moment of time in a body of flesh, but given immortal being in the precious force of love given and love received. In memory of three who live in our hearts and can never die, we dedicate this shrine of the Eternal World, in reverence and in love.

YETTA SALTZSTEIN COHEN

Yetta was born about 1872. There is no surviving record of her birth. She came to the USA with her mother and 2 younger brothers in 1890. Yetta married Philip Cohen and had three children: Hilda, Harry, and Ruth. In the census data, Hilda, Harry, and Ruth's birthplaces are listed as Maryland. Yetta, Philip, Hilda and Harry lived in Detroit for a while (1910 census), then moved to Los Angeles by 1920. I am unsure if they moved back to Maryland when Ruth was born, or if Ruth's true birthplace was actually Detroit or Los Angeles, and the census is incorrect. Philip died in July 1941, and Yetta in March 1946. Hilda and Harry never married. Ruth married Sydney Jonah (who was born in Shanghai), and had no children.

Yetta, Philip, and Hilda are buried in Beth Olam Cemetery, now part of Hollywood Forever, in Los Angeles, California.

CHARLES (KHAIM ZISKIND) SALTZSTEIN

Charles immigrated to the US earlier than his younger siblings, and the exact date is unknown. In one census, he gives 1888 as the date, but, as of this writing, I have been unable to locate any documents concerning his immigration. What we know of Charles was mostly via his son, Julian Saltzstein (Uncle Bud). He recalled his father being 17 when he immigrated, having being brought over by Uncle Lou (AL Saltzstein) in 1897.

His father probably first settled in Detroit, and then later moved to Milwaukee. He married Berdie Kahn April 25, 1906 in Milwaukee. He was involved with the jewelry business with Uncle Lou, and later went into business for himself in the typewriter ribbon and carbon paper business in the early '20's. He died in 1929.

Death Certificate, Charles Saltzstein

JOSEPH (YOSEF) SALTZSTEIN

Joseph immigrated to the US with his brother, mother and sister aboard the "Salier". Joseph lived in Washington DC for his first 10 years in the United States, and moved to Detroit in approximately 1900. He married Henrietta Marks (born December 11, 1882 in New York City), who was reportedly one of the most beautiful and charming young ladies in Detroit. She lived with her parents a few blocks away from Grandma and Grandpa (Sara and Isadore) Saltzstein. Her graciousness, personality, and beauty captured the heart of Joseph, and they were married in March 1903.

Their first child, Estelle, was born in Detroit. They later moved to Milwaukee, and Ruth, Morris, and Janet were all born there. They had a brief time of residence in Duluth. Morris died in 1917, and Henrietta died 2 years later. Joseph was left to raise his children alone, and he was recalled as a gentle man who did not lose his temper, shout, nor raise his hand. He was remembered as being a fun person, who loved life, had a marvelous sense of humor, twinkling eyes and a ready smile, but also being a man of character. He is credited with saying "all Saltzsteins are above reproach".

His daughter eulogized him with the following:

> "May the memory of the righteous be a blessing, and the acts of their goodness remain in the hearts of those who cherish their memory".

Meet Saltzstein and Wear Diamonds

My name is Saltzstein—I'll be glad to make your acquaintance. Maybe you will be equally glad.

I am the easiest man in Milwaukee to meet—just come into my jewelry store. I'll do the rest.

When I say I am a jeweler I mean just that. Diamonds, watches and jewelry—nothing else.

But I KNOW diamonds and I KNOW jewelry—no one can put over a poor article on me. There isn't an unworthy piece in my store. Poor pieces just aren't.

There are only four more days before Christmas but that is plenty of time for you and me to select just the right thing for that special offering you have in mind. My prices are less than most jewelers ask. Let me tell you why my cost is lower, my expense is lower and my profit is lower.

Possibly the amount involved in the purchase of a really worthy gift is worrying you a little. I can fix that. A small sum to bind the bargain—other small sums during succeeding months—and the thing is done.

I am listing on this page a few special things out of my stock that are recognizable as extra values. The list isn't so long but then I do not have so many nic-nacs as other stores have to fill up a big space with. Every item represents a suitable gift—and at a right price.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN SALTZSTEIN

Benjamin was more well-known to the rest of the family. He was the last of Isadore and Sara's children, born in 1884 and, by report, in Plock, Poland. I have never been able to locate a copy of his birth record. It is important to keep in mind that Sara bore Ben when she was 42. Ben was almost 20 years younger than his brother, AL. He was 6 years older than his nephew, Harry Saltzstein, and the two were very close throughout their entire lives.

Benjamin was a lawyer, having graduated from the University of Michigan. He was a skilled businessman and entrepreneur. He is recalled as being a straight-shooter, honest, and respected. He could be intimidating and opinionated, but was a very caring person at heart. He was a big cigar smoker who would "hold court" in a tower room in his Lake Drive house. He hosted bridge games once or twice weekly. He was a big Milwaukee Braves fan.

Johnny Saltzstein recalls fondly "5290 N Lake Dr, Milwaukee WI 53211 was Ben and Edna's, then Ben and Helen's, home, an English Tudor on Lake Michigan in Whitefish Bay with four stories, a card room in the turret, a library where everyone congregated (possibly my favorite room in any house ever), a dining room with a stunning view of the lake and a baronial captain's table, a ballroom in the basement, carved wood paneling and leaded glass and Persian rugs and bay windows … in short, an impressive edifice. Ben built it in 1929 and added an elevator when Edna got sick. From way before you and I were born until BF died, it was the place where Saltzsteins and Collats and Bernhardts and Hermans and Kriegers and Salstons and … gathered, returning from around the country to their native Milwaukee to celebrate holidays and birthdays and truly beautiful weddings." He also remembers " kibitzing endless bridge games (Ben's, Helen's, and mixed – I knew and enjoyed all of their friends) and played lots of spite and malice (Nanny) and gin (BF). Plus I ate well (Nanny always made my favorite food), entertained my friends (everyone got a ride in the elevator), and had a loving place to call home. I am and will forever be grateful."

Kathie Saltzstein recalls asking asking Uncle Ben about going back to Poland to see the town from which the family came, and Uncle Ben stating "Why would you want to go to that place?". People in the family referred to Poland as "The Old Country" and did not have fond memories or thoughts of it. Uncle Ben, and later his son Bob, had an old photo of the family home in Poland. Unfortunately, as of this writing, this photo cannot be located.

Uncle Ben was devoted to his extended family, who often solicited his advice. He took over the mantle of "head of the clan" after AL passed away, and was always ready to help a family member.

Benjamin was President of Temple Emanuel B'ne Jeshurn (after AL), active in the Bar Association and the Jewish Federation. There is a fascinating oral recording of him discussing the history of Jews in Milwaukee. This is included on the first CD sent 2003, and also on line:

www.saltzstein.us. Ben owned a lot of real estate. To Uncle Buster (Arthur Saltzstein)'s recollection, Ben was the first Milwaukee family member to own an automobile, a Franklin with a front end like a Mack truck. Uncle Buster worked in Ben's office right after law school and recalled Ben saying: "I never wrote a contract I couldn't break." My father recalls a story of his house being built on Lake Shore Drive, too far from the lake in his neighbors' opinion, and smiling sagely as, one by one, his neighbors' homes fell in the lake.

There was a large family gathering at Ben's home in honor of his 95th birthday. I still recall his huge home (and the elevator!), and his huge smile when gifted with a sweatshirt bearing the logo of University of Michigan

Ben's first wife, Edna Docter Saltzstein, died in 1960. He remarried Helen Cooper Saltzstein, the widow of his nephew Sidney C. Saltzstein. Ben lived to age 97. He is buried in Greenwood Cemetery in the Saltzstein Family plot.

Notice of remarriage of Benjamin Saltzstein, November 17, 1960

Atty. Benjamin F. Saltzstein, almost 90, was at his desk in downtown Milwaukee Friday, as he has been for 68 years.

Ben to Have Day, Even If It's Late

By H. CARL MUELLER

The years have been good Benjamin F. Saltzstein and almost 90 of those years, s returned the favor.

An attorney who has prac- ed law in downtown Mil- ukee for 68 years, Saltz- in helped build the Jewish nmunity in the city and is of its most distinguished cause he is ill," Saltzstein said in an interview. "I also feel sorry that a president of the United States has fallen so low."

He came to this country at the age of 4 and grew up in Detroit, attending the University of Michigan and graduating from its law school.

He came to Milwaukee after his graduation in 1906

Helped Build Generation Of Leadership

we're not going to fall to pieces — this is too great a country," Saltzstein said.

His brand of enthusiasm, inspiration and leadership has helped build a new generation of Jewish leadership in the city.

Young leaders would be brought to his home to spend hours listening to his words and sharing his ideas.

After they left, he would retire to the library of his large, old home at 5290 N. Lake Dr., Whitefish Bay, and read late into the night.

He is a former president of the Milwaukee Jewish Federation, the Milwaukee Jewish Home for the Aged, Congregation Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun and the Milwaukee Jewish Welfare Fund.

He headed the major gifts division of the welfare fund for many years and was on the cabinet of the national United Jewish Appeal.

Saltzstein also has served in executive positions of a number of other Jewish organizations as well as the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"I don't know whether I've been successful or done the right things all the time," he said. "But I've always tried. There's always a lot that can be done on the good side."

The party for Saltzstein was the idea of his sons, Robert, an attorney in Washington, D.C., and James, a Milwaukee real estate man; his daughter, Mrs. David Herman, and his wife, Helen.

By H. CARL MUELLER

The years have been good to Benjamin F. Saltzstein and for almost 90 of those years, he's returned the favor.

An attorney who has practiced law in downtown Milwaukee for 68 years, Saltzstein helped build the Jewish community in the city and is one of its most distinguished leaders.

He will celebrate his 90th birthday Monday by going to his office at 625 N. Milwaukee St., as he does every day.

But Tuesday afternoon will be different. Friends and colleagues from the world of business, politics, philanthropy and the legal profession will gather in his office for a party.

To them, "B. F." is a legened — a tireless leader who has been president of practically every major Jewish agency in Milwaukee.

Promoted Israel

A strong proponent of a separate state of Israel, he traveled the country to speak and raise funds for Jewish refugees after World War II.

He went to Europe after the war and came back to describe the plight of Jews in concentration and refugee camps, appealing for help to send them to Palestine.

When Palestine was ruled under a British mandate, he helped raise funds to send arms to Jews fighting to establish the new state of Israel.

He has been praised by judges, civic and religious bigwigs as a "leader among leaders and a counselor among counselors."

But you will get none of this from Saltzstein as he puffs on one of the six cigars he smokes daily and surveys you with a mischievous glint in his eye.

A voracious reader, his desk is piled high with books, ranging from a history of Israel to a biography of Richard Nixon.

"I feel sorry for Nixon because he is ill," Saltzstein said in an interview. "I also feel sorry that a president of the United States has fallen so low."

He came to this country at the age of 4 and grew up in Detroit, attending the University of Michigan and graduating from its law school.

He came to Milwaukee after his graduation in 1906 and set up his downtown law practice.

Good Health

That was 68 years ago.

"My health's been pretty good," he said. "I've got nothing to complain of, except I'm getting older all the time.

Saltzstein said young attorneys should become active in their communities because they made natural leaders and leadership is something the world sorely needs.

"I think we're in pretty bad condition — conditions are not good any place in the world," he said. "There's a lot of poverty, people on welfare, hunger — we've got to do something about it.

"Just what, I don't know . . . I'm not that smart," he said.

"We'll pull through —

3 Women Fail to Qualify

None of the three women who sought jobs as fire fighters qualified for the positions with the Milwaukee Fire Department, Mrs. Arlene Kennedy, executive secretary of the Fire and Police Commission, said Friday.

Two of the women did not show up for medical examinations, and the third failed the examination because of poor vision, Mrs. Kennedy said.

The three had previously passed physical agility tests.

"The B. F. Saltzstein House

This Lannon Stone and brick Tudor Revival residence was constructed in 1928 for B. F. Saltzstein. The design features stucco and 1/2 timbering on the second floor and a turret tower facing toward the street entrance. It was constructed by Velgreth & Papenthein for an estimated $45,000. The building sits on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan.

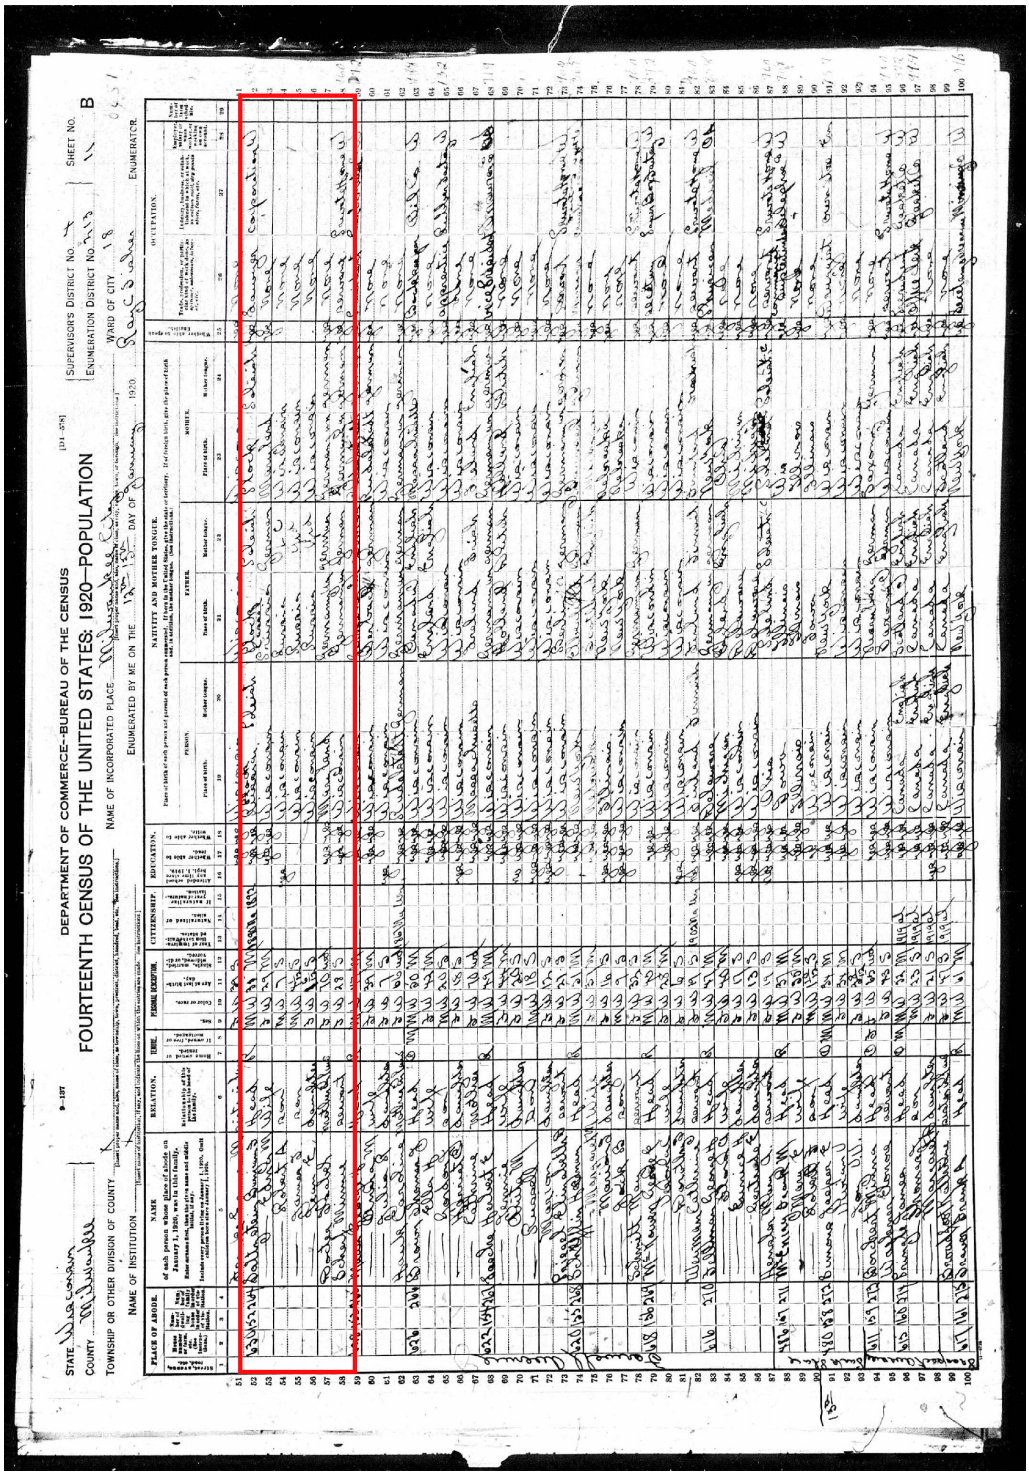

A swimming pool was added to the site in recent years, surrounded by a brick wall. The residence was identified by the Wisconsin State Historical Society in a 1980 survey"

Saltzstein, Jewish leader, dies

Benjamin F. Saltzstein, one of the Jewish community's most distinguished leaders for many decades, died Wednesday morning at Mount Sinai Medical Center of complications of old age.

Saltzstein, 97, lived at 5290 N. Lake Dr., Whitefish Bay.

In the Milwaukee area — especially in the Jewish community — Saltzstein was a legend.

When he was in his 90s, he was still traveling to his Downtown law office. He was a tireless figure with more than 60 years of community service.

After his death was announced, he was described by Ben Barkin, a public relations executive, as being "one of the stellar stars of the Jewish community."

The tributes given to him over the years were many — from birthday parties to award dinners — in recognition of his many cultural, religious, civic and governmental contributions.

He was born in Poland and brought to America at age 4. Saltzstein served, led or founded nearly every major Jewish organization in Milwaukee.

It was said over the years that he built the Jewish community in Milwaukee.

Saltzstein was a past president of Congregation Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun, the Milwaukee Jewish Welfare Fund, the Home for Aged Jews and the Federated Jewish Charities of Milwaukee County.

He was a founder of the area chapter of the American Jewish Committee and a member of the executive committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He also served in executive positions on the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Jewish Community Center and the United Jewish Appeal.

He graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in 1906 and was a lawyer in private practice here since then.

He was married twice. His first wife, Edna Docter, died in 1960. He married Helen Cooper the next year.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Robert and James, both of Milwaukee; and a daughter, Jean, of Milwaukee and Sarasota, Fla.

Truly a patriarch

The Milwaukee area and especially its Jewish community can be grateful that Benjamin F. Saltzstein lived here.

His death, at age 97, marks the end of an extraordinary career. Virtually every Jewish organization listed him as an active member, leader or founder, but his service extended far beyond his own ethnic and religious groups. Cultural, civic, professional, governmental and political organizations also benefited from his untiring work over a period spanning more than six decades.

In the most positive sense of the word, Ben Saltzstein was a patriarch.

Community leader Saltzstein dies

So, this president and founder of just about everything, this benefactor, has gone. Yet, his presence remains. And while the days of a certain dignity and grace may have left with him, dreams of distinction and honor can still be dreamed because a pioneer named Saltzstein lived here and loved here and cut a path here for all of us to follow.

From the eulogy for B.F. Saltzstein by Rabbi Francis Barry Silberg, Dec. 18.

Benjamin F. Saltzstein

Benjamin F. Saltzstein, 97, described by many people as the founder of the Jewish community, died Wednesday, Dec. 16. He died at Mount Sinai Medical Center of complications of old age.

"He was a distinguished leader of the Jewish community," said Melvin S. Zaret, executive vice president of the Milwaukee Jewish Federation. "He was an early advocate of bringing the Jewish communities in this state and in America together.

"His primary concern was always Israel," Zaret said. "Yet, he had a concern for the total Jewish community, especially the Federation, the Milwaukee Jewish Home and the Jewish Community Center."

Born in Poland and brought to America at age four, Saltzstein served, led or founded nearly every major Jewish organization in Milwaukee.

A 1906 graduate of Michigan Law School, Saltzstein came to Milwaukee to practice law. He continued in private practice while in his 90s. He was believed to be the oldest active member of the State Bar Association of Wisconsin.

Among Saltzstein's contributions to the Jewish community, he was a past president of the Milwaukee Jewish Home, the Jewish Federation and Congregation Emanu-El B'ne Jeshurun.

He was a founder of the American Jewish Committee and a member of the executive committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He also served on the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Jewish Community Center and the United Jewish Appeal.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, Robert and James, both of Milwaukee; and a daughter, Jean, of Milwaukee and Sarasota, FL.

Services were held at Weiss Funeral Home. Burial was at Greenwood Cemetery.

Contributions to the Milwaukee Jewish Home for the Aged or the charity of the donor's choice were suggested.

Eulogy for B.F. Saltzstein

Rabbi Francis Barry Silbe

December 18, 1981

Where does one begin to describe the life and times, the over 350,000 days and accolades of a legend? And then where does one end? Of legends people tell stories - of their encounters, of the mannerisms and gestures always just a bit bigger than life. Ben Saltzstein, not by chance but by labor, and not by accident but by persistence and dedication became a legend in his own time, was admired and imitated in his own time, was courted for counsel, called for his influence and counted on for his well-stropped wisdom. Nothing one says about him today is in any way gratuitous. He was - this Patriarch - a luminary, a man of impeccable honesty, of enthusiasm and the courage to challenge the angels in the name of heaven. He was a giant at a time when our people needed broad shoulders and a sage when we needed reminding.

This Ben Saltzstein, as you doubtless read, was principle in the formation and the organization of one of the most remarkable Jewish communities in the United States. The stories of his conferences at home, in the library, to create this or that committee, or meet this or that need, or resolve this or that crisis, or design a compaign, or to encourage the young men (many of whom are here today) who became his heirs in leadership are legion. His drawing the last drop of financial support and involvement from a reticent "landsman"; his never-say-die disposition captured more imaginations and accomplished more goals than I'd have time, even with the rest of this day, to rehearse. He was a bulwark, because he was reliable; he was the friend because he was loyal; he was a lynch-pin because his spirit was made of steel and his heart a pure, brilliant gold.

And he was brilliant. Was there a book he hadn't bent or an issue he hadn't studied? Was there a refugee for whom he hadn't wept or a call he hadn't answered. Was there a principle or an ideal resonating in the pages of his people's past he hadn't assumed and prosecuted with vigor? Wouldn't the circle of his friends, long gone, have lept to their feet today in praise of a mentor?

This lover of bridge and virtue, of baseball games with grandchildren, of bow-ties and cigars, this titan of Reform Judaism and tutor to the presidents of its Union, this celebrated man was - above anything - a modest man, well-mannered man, well-meaning man with a fulsome sense-of-humor, a sense of respect, a facile pen and tongue. He could give a speech in a tryce but advice only after having thought-through every option.

I remember a night a few years back when Lillian Friedman was being honored by hundreds of her friends in the synagogue as she retired as Executive Secretary to become our congregation's Archivist. And I remember that Ben, then 93, had been asked to say something before dinner about Lil. And when his name was announced, 500 people rose in their places and applauded him for five minutes. They wouldn't stop until he admonished that at that rate they'd never eat. And when he finished thanking Lil for her years of splendid service, one again, with the respect - no the esteem - they felt for him they rose again and, eyes fixed on that man, gave him the most sincere tribute I've ever seen. And it brought tears to his eyes. The crusty patrician was really a softy. And a democrat (with an upper and lower case D). A demanding and devoted father, a faithful husband and the axis of a family now spread from coast to coast - with a bulletin of its own and a character shaped by the man whose home was its haven: For a grandson to chat after a date, for a granddaughter with images of family meals, for children with memories of coins in trousers, of holy day receptions and weddings there, of furtive glances which spoke volumes.

Benjamin Saltzstein, distinguished lawyer, was so much more than so many of us now remember. After 97 years...

When freedom-loving Americans, brow bent by the Junior Senator from Wisconsin, needed him he was there giving McCarthy furrows in his own brow and when promising young men aspired to seats in the House he was there with support and encouragement. When Zion needed patriots he was one of her finest, and when the Jews needed a spokesman he was our first son. His influence and activities cut across the faiths and the cultures and the races. He was at home in every home and in every house of worship and proud to have come to this blessed country when he was in his second year and proud to walk through the doors of his office in his 97th and proud of his progeny - his lawyers, doctors, social humanitarians. And his was a pride without hubris.

And his was a presence. There was a man whose presence in a room ignited it; whose expressions at a meeting illuminated it; and whose approval was coveted by four generations of the movers and shakers of this town.

I'm convinced that if Norman Vincent Peale's model for positive thinking wasn't B.F. Saltzstein himself, then he must have been B.F.'s protege, just as I'm convinced that greatness is worn by a few more naturally and more convivially than others. And that was his greatness: his bearing was natural, his good sense was natural, his commitment to family was natural, his generosity (most of which was unknown to even his closest friends), his reverence for life and quality and equality were perfectly natural.

So this president and founder of just about everything, this benefactor has gone, but not his presence. It's here, in this place and in everyone he touched. Not the things he touched - which meant nothing to him - but the people he touched, who meant everything to him. And while the days of a certain dignity and grace may now have gone (with him) dreams of distinction and honor can still be dreamed and the impossible can still be done because a pioneer named Saltzstein lived here, loved here and cut a path here for all of us to walk alot more easily and with alot more hope.

MEYER (HIL MEYER) SALTZSTEIN

Another discovery that has given me a great sense of accomplishment has been locating our cousins descended from Meyer Saltzstein, Isadore's younger brother. It happened completely randomly: Mary Herman King sent me a photocopy of an obituary that ran in the New York Times of a Michael Saltzstein who died at age 60. Everyone was intrigued by the name, and wanted to find a link, but no one knew who he was. I requested a copy of the death record, and it showed that Michael was the child of Harold Saltzstein, whom I had on Aunt Sue's family tree as a child of Meyer. Michael's death certificate also included the executrix of his estate. Feeling I had nothing to lose, I wrote the executrix, who actually took the time to call me. She even informed me that, due to New York State Law, every will filed must have a copy of the family tree, and would I possibly be interested in it? Barely able to contain my enthusiasm, I excitedly requested a copy. Not only did the family tree arrive, but she also included everyone's mailing address. I typed up a letter to the first person listed of each branch, and sent the letters off. Barely a week passed before I received a phone call from David Buchwald and Todd Buchwald, both of whom were interested in the family genealogy! We spoke for an hour and a half that night. We have since continued to exchange information and continue the family ties.

Meyer was born in Plock, Poland, probably on December 4, 1846. The reason for the uncertainty regarding his birth date is that, of all the relatives, Meyer's birth date was constantly inconsistent. At one point, his age was off by 11 years (see third marriage certificate). His birth record was a “late registration”, registered 20 years after his birth, so it is possible that an incorrect birth date was entered. Meyer married his first wife, Itka Pesa Rosenbaum on March 4, 1869. Together, they had 3 children, one of whom was a stillbirth. Itka Pesa died October 3, 1877, aged 27. Her death record lists her survived by her husband and 2 children, Peisakh and Ester. This Ester is the Aunt Ester that our New York cousins recalled as a bit bent and speaking with an accent. It is unclear whatever became of Peisakh - if he died young, immigrated, or what. Meyer came to the US in 1877. There are two different records of naturalization for him and, perhaps not surprisingly, the dates are not consistent.

Meyer married a second time to Rachel Bosky, with whom he had 3 more children, Morris, Isidor and Saddie (Sarah). Verbal history has said that they divorced, and our New York cousins have a memory of someone stating (regarding Rachel) “she came from nothing, she'll be nothing”. Evidently, she was received in the home of Celia Saltzstein Bergazin, the only family member who would still see her. However, on Rachel’s death certificate, it states that she was still married and that she died from post-partum convulsions. The death certificate clarifies further that this was heart failure caused by post-partum convulsions, and this existed for over 10 hours. It is difficult to understand if the heart failure and convulsions lasted 10 hours, or if she had given birth 10 hours earlier. Either way, it appears that Meyer lost his second wife in the same manner he lost his first – childbirth. Saddie and Isidor were raised by their maternal grandmother, at least for schooling (see the 1900 New York Census). Morris is listed once in the 1910 census living with the Boskys. Saddie killed herself in 1908 after the death of her grandmother and uncle. Isidor and Morris are lost to follow up after 1910.

Meyer married Bertha Rabinowitz, daughter of a prominent rabbi, 27 March 1893. Together they had 9 children. Of these children, Malka died in infancy, and Bennie and Fannie died in 1919. Meyer's occupation was consistently listed as “jeweler”. Bertha and Meyer’s last surviving child, Miriam Saltzstein Guter, died September 24, 2010 at the age of 99 and is buried at Beth David Cemetery in New York.

Meyer died on March 8, 1918. He is buried at Mt. Zion Cemetery in New York.

Steamship “Canada”

Canada was one of Dominion's original contributions to the "White Star-Dominion Line." Built by Harland & Wolff, Belfast, she was launched in 1896 and took her maiden voyage, Liverpool-Québec-Montréal, on 1 October 1896. During the Boer War (1899-1902) she served as a troop transport, but otherwise she served Canada during the summers and Boston in winter. In August 1914, while in Canada, she was taken over and used to transport troops to England. Upon her arrival there, she was used as an accommodation ship for German prisoners for the rest of the year. From 1915 until the end of World War I, she was used as a transport ship.

Her first voyage after the war was from Liverpool to Portland, Maine, in November 1918. Although she was transferred to Leyland Line ownership in 1921, she retained her name and continued to carry Dominion's livery. She remained in service until August 1926, when she made her final voyage on the same route as her maiden voyage. She was scrapped in Italy.

GRIEF STRICKEN GIRL ENDS LIFE IN TROWMART INN

Sadie Saltzstein, Stenographer for Nassau Street Law Firm, Dead in Gas-Filled Room.

NO ONE TO CARE FOR SINCE DEATH OF THREE RELATIVES

Pathetic Story Revealed by Letter She Wrote to Young Friend Before Dying.

After writing a letter in which she declared that grief caused by the loss of relatives she loved and the fact that she had no one left to care for her, Sadie Saltzstein, twenty years old, whose parents live at No. 26 Carlton street, East Orange, but who had been living at the Trowmart Inn, a hotel for women, at Hudson street and Abingdon square, since last November, ended her life there early to-day.

The engineer of the hotel, Charles Roberts, who had been summoned to find a gas leak and who had traced it to Miss Saltzstein's apartment, found her dead in her room, which was filled with illuminating gas, flowing freely from an open jet on the wall.

A physician said the young woman had been dead for two hours at least. Two letters, one addressed to Mrs. Shepherd, the manager of the house, and another to Miss Hattie Klein, supposed to live at the hotel, were taken possession of by the police, who sent them to Coroner Shrady.

The young woman had been employed by the law firm of De Witt, Lockman & De Witt, No. 88 Nassau street, as a stenographer. She was always well dressed and seemed to be in comfortable circumstances.

In response to a telephone message to the Saltzstein home, in East Orange, Charles Saltzstein, the young woman's brother, went to Coroner Shrady's office and claimed the body.

In the letter to Miss Hattie Klein, Miss Saltzstein said that the deaths of her mother, grandmother and uncle within a few months had preyed on her mind and she had no one left that she cared for.

The other, marked for the manager of the Trowmart Inn, Mrs. M. L. Shepherd, asked that, as soon as her body was found, telephone messages be sent to No. 704 Coney Island, and No. 6,251 Seventy-ninth street. Coroner Shrady communicated with both these numbers. At the Coney Island address no one could be found who knew Miss Saltzstein, but at the other number Mrs. Marion Saltzstein, an aunt, lived.

Mike Saltzstein, 60, Coney Island's Carousel Man, Dies

By DOUGLAS MARTIN

Mike Saltzstein, who for more than a quarter-century kept Coney Island's last historic carousel spinning through sunlit summers, ice-cold winters and lurching changes in the famed amusement area, died on July 4 in his Brooklyn apartment. He was 60.

He apparently died of a heart attack, said his friend and partner in the carousel, James McCullough. Mr. McCullough went to Mr. Saltzstein's apartment in Flatbush after he failed to show up by 10 a.m. for one of Coney Island's busiest days of the year.

For 27 years, Mr. Saltzstein maintained and operated the merry-go-round, while his partner took care of a nearby Coney Island kiddie park which he owned by himself. (Unlike Disney World and other modern megaparks, Coney Island has always been a collection of individual rides and large and small amusement parks.)

"The carousel was his life," said Charles Denson, who grew up in Coney Island and is writing a book about its history. "I don't think he's ever done anything else."

Each year, Mr. Saltzstein would repaint the banner sign over the ride's entrance with what appeared to be the same misspelling: "B & B Carousell." That was the spelling favored by the legendary carousel manufacturer William F. Mangels, who made the B & B's frame at his factory several blocks away.

Operating at Surf Avenue and West 12th Street, the B & B is the only ride remaining north of Surf, an area that once had four full-size wooden carousels. In Coney Island over all, there have been as many as a dozen at one time, and at least twice that many have operated over the years.

"They went one at a time," said Mr. McCullough, a descendant of George C. Tilyou, founder of Coney Island's legendary Steeplechase Park.

The carousels vanished because people stopped coming. Some feared rising crime as the neighborhood declined. Some preferred television. The America that gave birth to Coney Island had changed.

The B & B's 36 jumping horses, 14 "standers" and two chariots were carved by the great artists of the Brooklyn school of carousel carving.

Mike Saltzstein at his carousel, which was built in 1919.

For 25 years, the guardian of the merry-go-round.

Their fanciful, vivid representations contrast with the larger, stronger figures of the competing Philadelphia school. The master craftsmen Charles Carmel, M. C. Illions and Charles Looff all contributed figures.

The 66-key Gebruder organ still cranks out classic carousel tunes. Riders on the outside can still grab for stainless steel rings. The single brass ring — good for a free ride — was long ago removed for transparently pecuniary considerations.

The International Association of Amusement Parks and Attractions says fewer than 20 carousels still have operating brass-ring machines.

The association estimates that the B & B is one of fewer than 175 carousels still operating that were produced in the golden age of carousels, from the early 1880's to the early 1930's, when 2,000 to 3,000 were produced.

A Web site, Amusement Park History (http://history.amusementparks.com), calls the B & B the third gem of remaining Coney Island amusements, along with the Cyclone roller coaster and the giant Wonder Wheel.

The Web site's author, Adam Sandy, said the B & B "harkens back to the age-old tradition of owner-operators at Coney," and Mr. Saltzstein was that owner-operator.

He approached his duties professionally, dressed in the sort of khaki or olive-green attire that mechanics favor. He arrived as early as 10 a.m. each day to do repairs and cleaning, and he would crank up the merry-go-round for anybody who wanted a ride. Even in the slow season, from November to April, he stayed open on weekends.

"If there was a snowstorm, he'd just shovel the walk," said Stanley Fox, who grew up working on carousels and other rides with Mr. Saltzstein and now operates booths that let people take their own pictures.

Under Mr. Saltzstein, the B & B came to play a vital role in the daily life of Coney Island. Ride operators, sideshow performers and the usual hangers-on made it a habit to drop by to sip coffee and listen to him complain about the lousy business on his side of Surf Avenue.

He complained with a sense of humor. One standing joke involved his pulling out a card on which he had written down the number of days to Easter, when a new and unimaginably more lucrative season would surely dawn. Each day, he changed the number on the count.

Dick Zigun, who runs Coney Island U.S.A., a hip version of an old-fashioned sideshow across Surf Avenue from the B & B, said Mr. Saltzstein "had the sand in his shoes," meaning he had become as much a part of Coney Island as cotton candy.

"Whether or not that makes you rich, it can sometimes make you happy," Mr. Zigun said of the Coney Island life.

Those who knew Mr. Saltzstein suspect he was happy, although his gruff manner and well-advertised sore feet might have argued against it.

"If you're too friendly, people want to take advantage of you and hit you up for loans or whatever," Mr. Fox explained yesterday. "He gave lots of kids free rides."

Mr. Saltzstein's first job was working as a "ring boy" at a carousel on the boardwalk when he was 15 or 16, Mr. McCullough said. He then worked at other Coney Island carousels. Winters, he worked at the carousel in Prospect Park and the indoor one at what was then the A & S department store in downtown Brooklyn.

In 1973, the B & B was offered for sale by the two men for whom it was named, Mr. Bishoff and Mr. Brienstein. It had been built in 1919 at Mr. Mangels's factory and sold to a park in northern New Jersey. In the 1930's, it was brought to Coney Island. Rides then cost a nickel.

Mr. McCullough said that by the time the two decided to buy it, rides were a quarter. "The understanding was that he would operate it and work for a salary and I would run my business here," he said. "The years go by and here we are now."

Mr. McCullough said he thought his friend liked the work, though his bad foot wasn't making it any easier to jump on and off the spinning ride. "It's just something you do all the time and it keeps you occupied," he said.

Other friends recall the little things about Mr. Saltzstein, like his love of country music.

At first no survivors were identified, but it now appears that there may be a living aunt, Mr. McCullough said. More than 100 people came to the funeral. For days, people left bouquets and candles at the carousel.

Yesterday a worker was polishing the brass. Calliope music bounced through the salty air. The B & B was open, for $2.50 a ride.

ESTER RYFKA SALTZSTEIN BURSHTYN

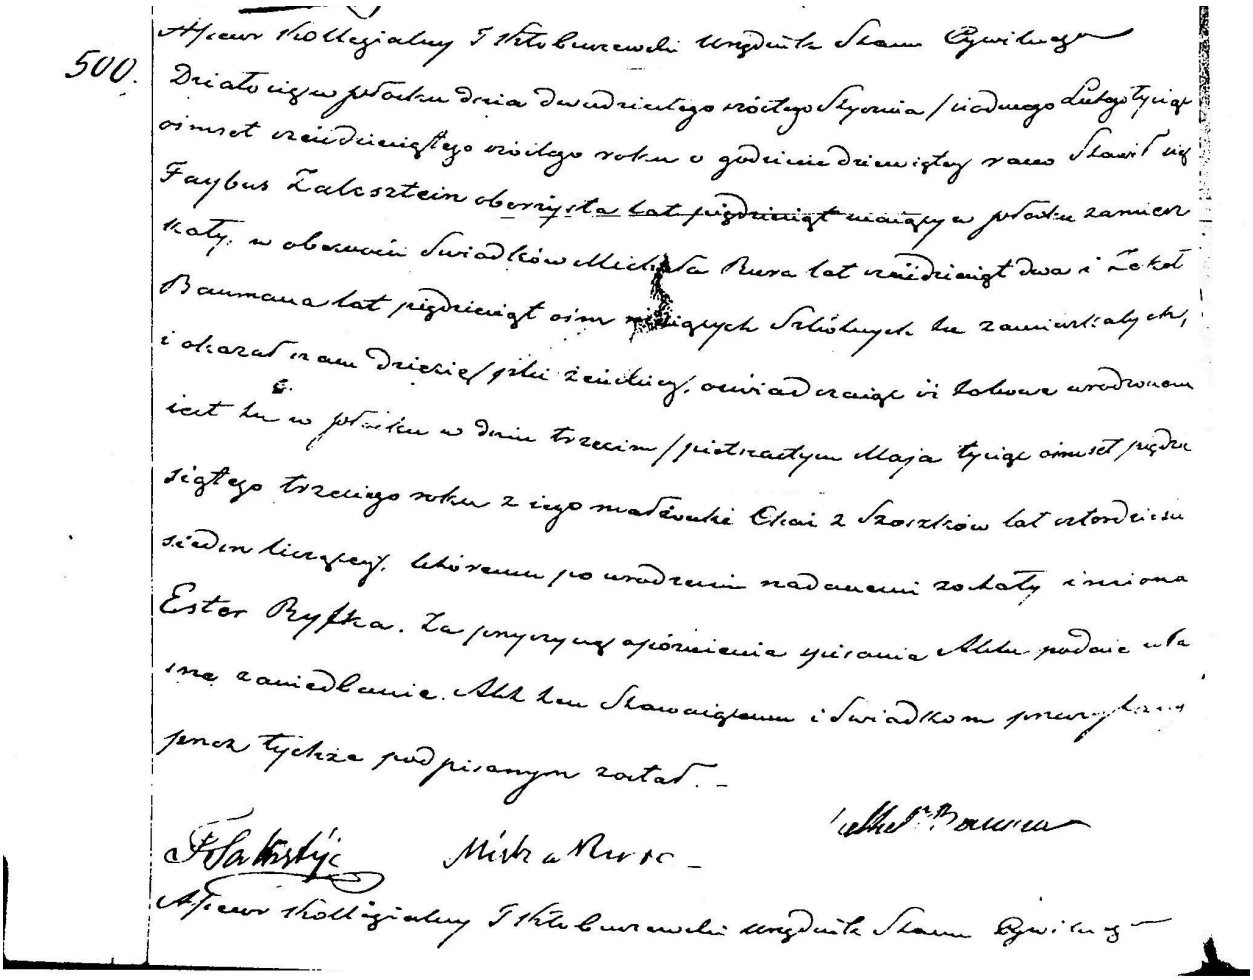

I have been unable to locate any information on Ester's descendents beyond what was already known via Aunt Sue's notes and the following census report.

We now that Ester was born in Poland, one of 4 of 6 surviving daughters of Favel and Chaya, and the eldest surviving daughter. We know she married Zalman Mikhal Burshtyn 16 March 1875. Whether or not she ever immigrated to the United States is unknown. She had three known children: Bella, Jacob and Phillip. These three children were all presumably born in Poland, given the only record I have is of Phillip and he listed his birthplace as "Russia" (see section on Polish history for further explanation). There is a note on the old tree from Aunt Sue noting that Bella married a man by the last name "Silberstein", but I have been unable to locate any records on her. The same tree noted no spouse of Jacob, and Phillip married a woman named "Becky" and had two children, Beatrice and Irving.

It is possible that both Beatrice and Irving are still alive, and it would be most wonderful if we are able to connect with them; however, I have only hit dead-ends with my searches.

JOHANNA (JACHEWET) SALTZSTEIN ROSEN

Jachewet was one of six daughters of Favel and Chaya, and the second oldest surviving daughter. It has been one of my greatest personal triumphs tracking down her descendents.

According to the Polish Vital Records, she was born Jun 20, 1855. Per her death certificate and tombstone, her birth year was listed as 1866. Often, girl's birth records were recorded as "late registration", and it is possible that the given date is inaccurate; however, I suspect more likely that oral history was the inaccuracy here. All that we know of her has been gleaned from vital records. We have her in the 1890 Baltimore Census, listed married to her husband Isaac. This record incorrectly gives her name as "Julie", but that is clearly a misunderstanding of "Johanna" and lists her daughter Dora, age 20, living with her parents. According to this census, Jachewet immigrated in 1890, her husband Isaac in 1889. This would mean that they were married earlier in Poland, most likely in 1880 -1881, and that their first three daughters were born in Poland. Efforts to find either their marriage record or immigration/naturalization records have not been successful.

Jachewet died in 1912; we have a copy of her obituary, as well as her death record. The cause of death is listed as "apoplexy", which is today known as a stroke. Her father's name is listed as "Phillip", a common Americanization of Favel; her mother is listed as "Don't know". Isaac lived for 26 years longer, dying in 1938. They are buried together, along with most of their daughters, in Hebrew Friendship Cemetery in Baltimore, MD.

Jachewet and Isaac had 5 daughters: Pauline, Sadie, Dora, Anna and Rose. They were all raised in Baltimore.

Pauline Rosen was the firstborn. Her birth year given on her tombstone is 1882. My effort to find any record of her, immigration, naturalization, or census has been fruitless. She is remembered through photographs as being breathtakingly gorgeous. She married Max Kanner. Interestingly, in the newspaper articles, his name is spelled "Kenner", yet all his wife and children have the last name "Kanner". They had three children: Hilda, Sidney and Floryne. Pauline died young (aged 35 years). One source has told me that she died in childbirth – if this is true, it must have been a stillborn as there is no record of any child born to her in 1917, the year she died. Patsy Tollin (daughter of Sidney Kanner, and named for Pauline) recalls being told that Max Kanner remarried, and his new wife didn't want to be bothered with the children. Patsy states that Max and his new wife walked out on the children and walked out of their lives. The three children were raised by their aunts Dora and Anna, and Anna's husband Joe. I do have a copy of a 1920 census from Baltimore listing Max Kanner and gives an immigration date of 1890. The census also reports he was widowed, and there are no children listed as living with him Pauline's three children all married, had children, and most all of these children subsequently married and have children as well. There is a photo of Pauline and Max in the subsequent pages. Pauline is buried with her parents and sisters in Hebrew Friendship Cemetery, Baltimore, MD.

Sadie Rosen was born next in 1887, in Poland or overseas. There is a gap of 5 years between her birth and her older sister's. It is possible there were other children who died, although I have not found any mention of other children in the known census records. Sadie married Jack Fink. They are listed in the 1930 Washington DC census, and the census gives the year of immigration of Jack as 1884, and Sadie as 1887, being naturalized in 1894. Sadie and Jacob had 5 children: Edward, George, Pauline, Marian, and Dorothy. All but Edward married. Researching the family has shown that George had a daughter who married and had 2 children. Those children have also had children. At the time of this writing, Pauline Rosen Sattler is still living and has 2 sons. Efforts to contact them have not yet been successful. It is unclear if either Marian or Dorothy had children. Sadie is buried with her parents, sisters and husband in Hebrew Friendship Cemetery.

Dora Rosen was the next daughter, and was born in Poland/Russia in 1890. She is listed as living with her parents in the 1920 Baltimore census, and states her birthplace as Russia, and year of immigration as 1890. She never married, and is remembered as the maiden aunt who lived with her parents and brought up many of her nieces and nephews. She was also the longest-lived of the children, living to see her 94th year. There is a photo of a locket belonging to her on a subsequent page, it bears her initials and is remembered as being worn by Dora.

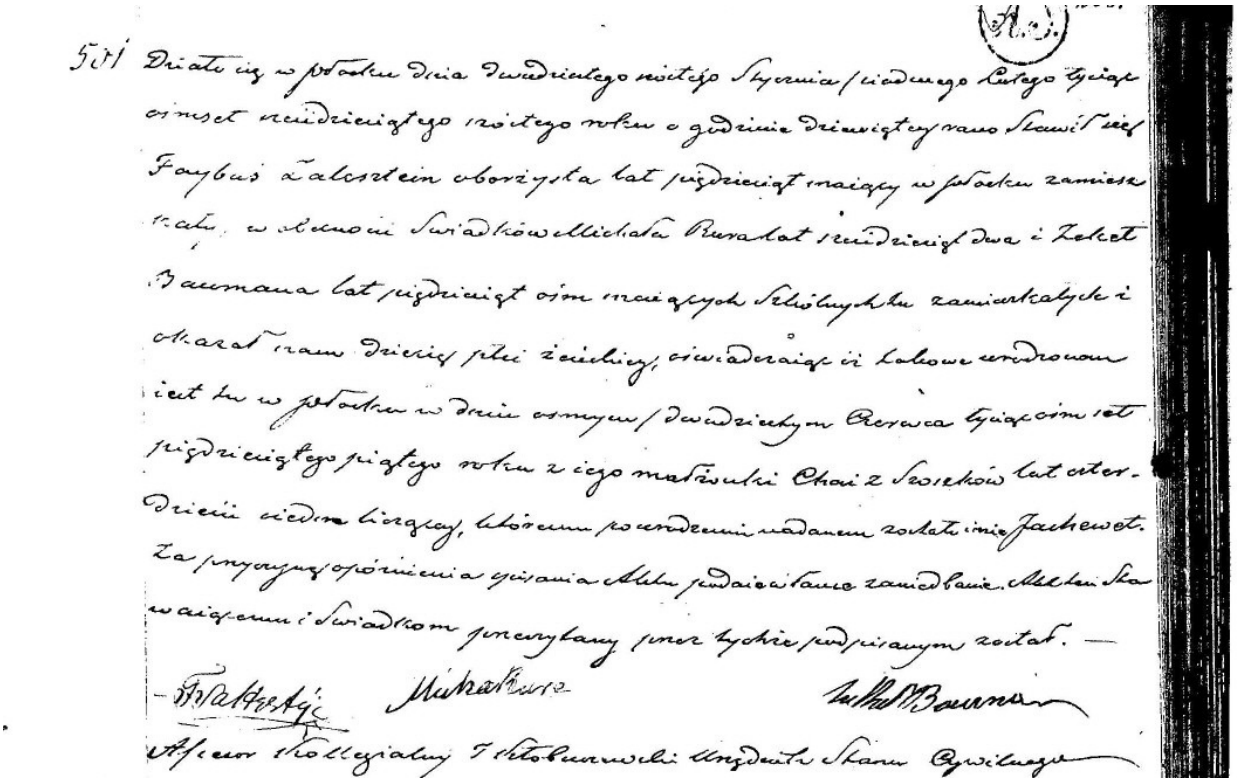

Anna Rosen was the 4th of the daughters, born in 1891 and the first born in the USA. She married Joseph Goldstein. Anna, Joseph and Dora are recalled as being the ones who took care of the nieces and nephews, and helped raise them after the death of their mother. Interestingly, the 1930 US census shows Anna, Joseph, Isaac, Dora, Hilda and Sidney all residing at the same address, but there is no mention of Floryne, who must have married by that time. Joseph is recalled as working for the mafia, and running the Supper Club. He worked for Lucky Luciano, Frank Costello, and Meyer Lansky. Joseph was remembered as running the club, but not having anything to do with the other end of the business. They are recalled fondly by their great-niece Patsy Tollin as putting their nephew Sydney (Patsy's father) through college. Patsy also remembers vividly when Joseph died. He left no money, so Anna was left "high and dry". Patsy recalls being in the big family house in Reisterstown, MD, and seeing 5 huge black limousines pull up. She recalls being frightened for a moment, unsure if mayhem was about to erupt. Instead, out came five larger-than-life men, each representing one of the 5 families of the mafia. They came into the house, said a prayer and each left an envelope. Inside each envelope was cash, representing a sort of life insurance. However, they weren't just there to pay their respects – Amy Lippmann recalls being told that Joe had a safe in the house containing $2 million of the mafia's money! By the end of her life, Anna had run through all the money and Dora took care of her

Rose Rosen was the last known child of Jachewet and Isaac, and was born in 1897. She was born 6 years after Dora; so again, there is a possibility of other children who may have died. Rose married Abraham Joseph Schreiber. Verbal history had stated that she had no children; however, both census records and her obituary contradict this. Rose and Joseph had 6 children: 5 boys and 1 girl. At the time of Rose's death, her obituary mentions 4 of the boys, including 2 who had already died, but not her daughter nor her other son. This makes me wonder if the two children not mentioned in the obit died in childhood. I did look at the census record to verify, the two are listed as children and not other relatives. I have been unable to track down any of Rose's children.

LAJA SALTZSTEIN GUTMAN

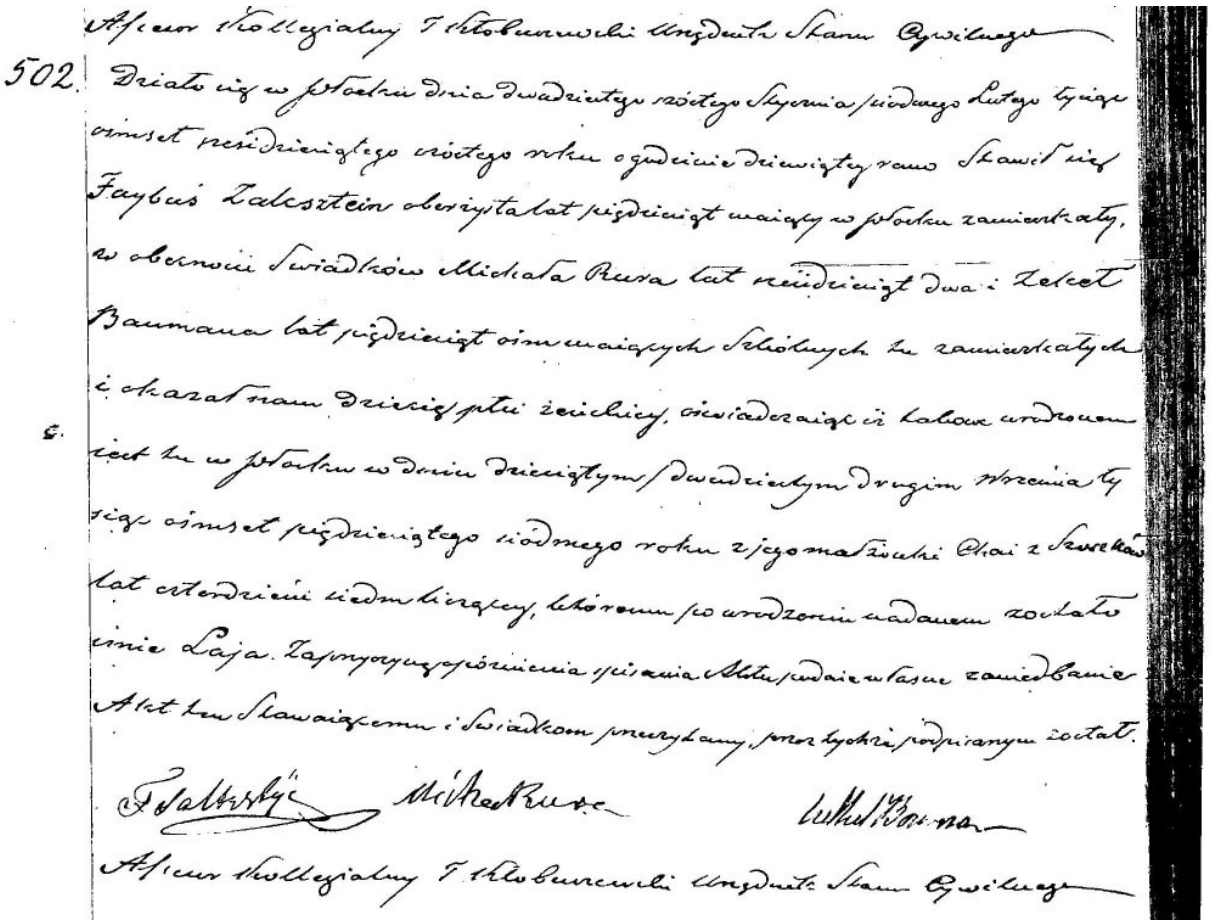

Very little is known about Laja Saltzstein. Per Aunt Sue's tree, she died in 1938; however, she is not mentioned in her brother Abraham Louis Saltzstein's obituary in 1937, so presumably she died before that date.

She had no children.

ABRAHAM LOUIS SALTZSTEIN, “SR”

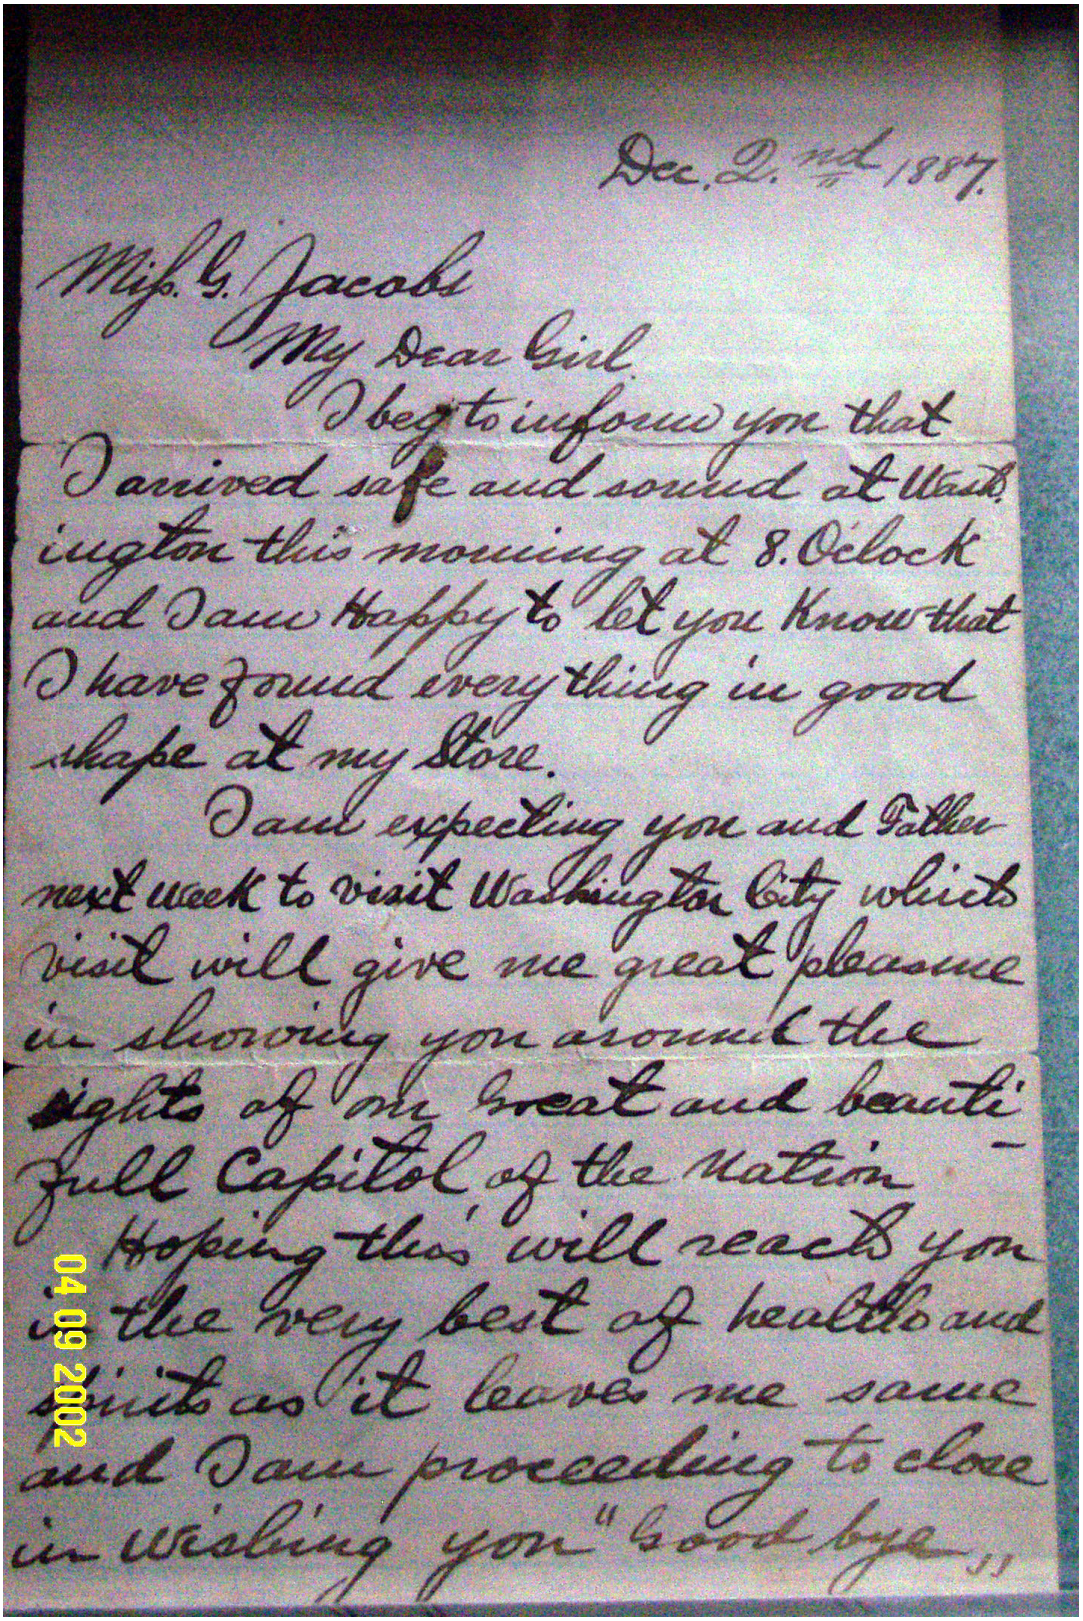

All that we know of Abraham Louis, the younger brother of Isadore and Meyer, is via vital records and oral history. As recalled by Charlotte Fox, granddaughter of Celia Saltzstein Bergazin (Isadore, Meyer, and Abraham's sister): Uncle Abe was her grandmother's weird brother; a REAL character (capitals her own addition). He was recalled as being nearly blind, but on more than one occasion, criticizing young relatives for wearing sheer dresses without slips underneath. He dressed like a bum, to the point that, when he went to visit his sister, he would always be stopped at the front desk and not allowed to go upstairs until they checked with Celia. He was also remembered as being very bright and scholarly, but unconventional.

The only photo we have of Abe is attached to a letter he wrote to his fiancee, Miss G Jacobs. The letter is dated 1887, and makes a reference to his jewelry store in Washington DC. Abe never married: the story is that he was jilted. He died on January 8, 1937, unmarried and alone.

END OF DESCENDANTS, FAVEL SALTZSTEIN

SZMUL NOSEK ZALDSZTEJN

Szmul Nosek Zaldsztejn was a younger child of Lejbka and Ruchla Zalcsztein. He married Chawa Ruchla Obludziner November 3, 1857. Chawa Ruchla was born about 1837 in Zdzywaj, Poland, daughter of Chil Jankielowicz and Bajla Obludziner. We know they had at least 5 children: Abraham (birthdate unknown) Chana Bajla (born April 13, 1859), Lejbka (born December 22, 1860), Max (born abt. 1872), and Jankiel (born abt. 1884). These dates at a glance may seem utterly impossible, but bear in mind the wide variations in reporting dates of births (see " Important Facts to Remember When Reading the Polish Vital Records") and take them as worth a grain of salt as I do. We do have a record of Jankiel Salsztejn who emigrated from Warszawa, Poland in 1922 to Ellis Island to join his brother Max Saltzstein who lived at 729 Hopkinsen Avenue in Brooklyn. For whatever reason, his name is crossed out on the manifest, but still clearly legible. This record appears right after the descendant list of Szmul Nosek.

We know nothing of Szmul Nosek or Chawa Ruchla beyond their marriage and their listed children. I have not been able to find any record of Abraham, but as every note on Aunt Sue's butcher paper family tree has been correct, I am sure he existed. There are two possible Abrahams whom I have included--both have a birthdate that makes it wildly improbable, but I have included what I have found for information.

Descendants of Szmul Nosek Zaldsztejn

Generation 1

1. SZMUL NOSEK[1] ZALDSZTEJN was born about 1830 in Chorzele, Poland. He married Chawa Ruchla Obludziner, daughter of Chil Jankielowicz Obludziner and Bajla on 03 Nov 1857. She was born about 1837 in Zdzywaj, Poland.

   Szmul Nosek Zaldsztejn and Chawa Ruchla Obludziner had the following children:

   i. ABRAHAM[2] SALTZSTEIN.

   ii. LEJBKA SALTZSTEIN was born on 22 Dec 1860.

   iii. CHANA BAJLA SALTZSTEIN was born on 13 Apr 1859.

   2. iv. MAX ZALDSZTEJN SALTZSTEIN was born about 1872. He died on 06 Jun 1948 in New York, New York, New York, USA (Buried Mt Zion Cemetery New York). He married GUSSIE LEVY. She was born about 1875. She died on 13 May 1947 in New York, New York, New York, USA.

   v. JANKIEL SALSZTEJN ZALDSZTEJN was born about 1884.

   Notes for Jankiel Salsztejn Zaldsztejn:
   According to Ellis Island (ellisisland.org), Jankiel Salsztejn came in 1922 from Warszawa, Poland. Arrived 10/11/1922 to stay with his brother, Max Saltzstein at 729 Hopkinsen Ave, Brooklyn. I have confirmed with Bob Saltzstein this was Max's address. Lists his age at 38.

   Of note, this puts his age at 24 years younger than oldest documented sib, and his mom at about 54 years old! Obviously, his mom wasn't truly that old which leads to several hypotheses: (1) incorrect maternal birth year (doubtful due to the multiple different vital record sources we have; (2) born to same dad, different wife; (3) He was actually a cousin/relative with same last name who knew Max, and by far easier to put "brother" on record than true relation. I don't know if we'll ever figure this out!

Immigration Record, Jankiel Salsztejn
Age 38
Born in Poland
Joining Brother Max Saltzstein in Brooklyn

MAX SALTZSTEIN

Szmul Nosek and Chawa Ruchla's son Max immigrated to the US. His name most certainly was not Max at birth – more likely, it was Mordche or Mendel. Max stated on his naturalization records that he came to the US on March 1, 1890. I have spent a lot of time trying to track down Max's immigration records, and even hired an expert to help, and we came to one of 3 plausible conclusions:

1) There is a record of a Moises Salzstein coming on the SS Scandia with his mother Chasche, sibling Leib, and Moses March 2 1890. Chasche is a form of, and interchangeable with, Chawa. It is entirely possible that Moses is "our" Max; however, this is not the typical name that was changed to Max. The given birth years for Moises and Chasche are plausible. Leib's is not. It is possible this was a subsequent and similarly named child, a different child with a misreported name, or simply not the correct family.
2) There is a Mordhe Salzstein arriving August 3, 1891. The name is right (Mordhe commonly became Max), the listed gender is wrong (but this is obviously an error as Mordhe is a male name), the year is right, but the listed father (Leiser) is wrong, and the given age (6) is wrong. If Leiser was a relative and not his father, and a simple marking error was done (6 instead of 16), this could be Max as well.
3) Most of these immigration records were from ships departing from Bremen. Bremen was heavily bombed in WWII and vast volumes of records were destroyed. It is entirely possible the correct record is amongst all those destroyed.

Max lists his profession as "tailor" on his Naturalization Record. In the 1910 New York Census, his profession is listed as "Presser". By the time of the 1920 New York Census, his profession was changed to "salesman". His grandson Herb recalls him running a saloon on the Lower East Side, and being stand-offish and reserved. He described him as not being poor, but lower middle class. Herb recalls his grandmother Gussie as a lady lying in a back room with congestive heart failure and cold compresses to aid her. Interestingly, the 1910 census also lists an Abe Levy living with Max, Gussie and their children – he is noted to be a nephew.

Max and Gussie had 4 children: Annie, Sam, Harry and Louis. Annie was recalled by Herb as the one who ran the house for her parents. Henry was described by his son as a product of his age, a partner in distillery, a bootlegger, a bookkeeper and a builder of Liberty Ships for Kaiser Company. Henry was the bookkeeper for Carlos Gambino, whom Bob met. Bob has written a beautiful summary of his father – I have included it on its own as it would be a shame to otherwise alter. The family all lived in the same building at 451 Kingston Avenue in Crown Heights, but in different apartments.

Max was naturalized December 22, 1898. His naturalization record states his birthday was July 1, 1873. He married Gussie Levy, presumably in the US. Gussie died May 13, 1947. Max died June 6, 1848 and they are buried together in Mount Zion Cemetery, New York.

Max Saltzstein Naturalization, 24 December 1898

BOGUS RUM STAMPS ARE SEIZED IN RAID

Outfit for Engraving and Printing Revenue Certificates Found in Norfolk Street Room.

INTERPRETS BEER RULING

O'Connor Awaits Regulations Before Issuing Permits—Says Groceries Cannot Sell.

Prohibition agents yesterday raided a room in the rear of 81 Norfolk Street and confiscated a complete outfit for engraving and printing revenue stamps and whisky labels. They also seized more than 2,000 labels, six barrels of sherry and port wine, some whisky, coloring matter and essences of various kinds. Max Saltzstein, said to own the property, and two others were arrested. The agents intimated more arrests might follow.

Charles J. Buchner, counsel for Frank Speranzino, formerly a wholesale liquor dealer at 835 Ralph Avenue, Brooklyn, told Federal Judge Garvin that arrangements had been bade for the return of liquors held to have been illegally seized. Mr. Buckner told the court the warehouse owners had agreed to wait for their charges of $613.20 until the Government had sold whisky legally seized. Judge Garvin ordered Speranzino and Harold B. Dobbs, Brooklyn prohibition agent, to appear in court today. He said if it was shown that the whisky had been returned to the owner as drected, the complaint against Mr. Dobbs for contempt would be dismissed.

O'Connor Interprets Beer Ruling.

Charles R. O'Connor issued a statement explaining his interpretation of the Attorney General's ruling governing the sale of beer for medicinal purposes. He said the Prohibition Department would have "little difficulty in limiting within reasonable bounds the number of permits granted to the wholesaler, the retailer or the manufacturer." His office would continue to operate as it did prior to the Palmer ruling until new regulations were issued from Washington. He understood these rules were now being formulated.

After reviewing Mr. Palmer's decision, Director O'Connor's statement says:

"Regulations by the Commissioner deemed by him proper to limit the distribution of liquors for medicinal purposes to cases in which a physician in good faith believes the same necessary would be valid, as would a regulation limiting the quantity which may be prescribed at any one time.

"The manner in which liquor may be obtained upon prescription for medicinal purposes is clearly dealt with by the Attorney General, who holds that the act itself confines such sales to a narrow limit by providing 'no permit shall be issued to any one to sell liquor at retail, unless the sale is to be made through a pharmacist designated in the permit and duly licensed under the laws of his State to compound and dispense medicine prescribed by a duly licensed physician. No one can be given a permit to prescribe liquor unless he is a physician duly licensed to practice medicine and actively engaged in the practice of such profession. That no permit to make sales at retail can be granted except to a druggist who himself is a licensed pharmacist or who employs such a pharmicist.

Corner Grocery Eliminated.

"The suggestion that the corner grocery, by simply employing a pharmacist perhaps for a few hours a day, can obtain a permit to dispense liquors at retail is without foundation. So long as I am Federal Prohibition Director of the State of New York no person not a pharmacist, or in good faith employing a phaemacist an operating a drug store which sumstantially complies with the foregoing requirements, will be permitted to obtain a permit to sell liquors at retail, unless I receive instructions from my superior officers at Washington to the contrary. I am not expecting such instructions.

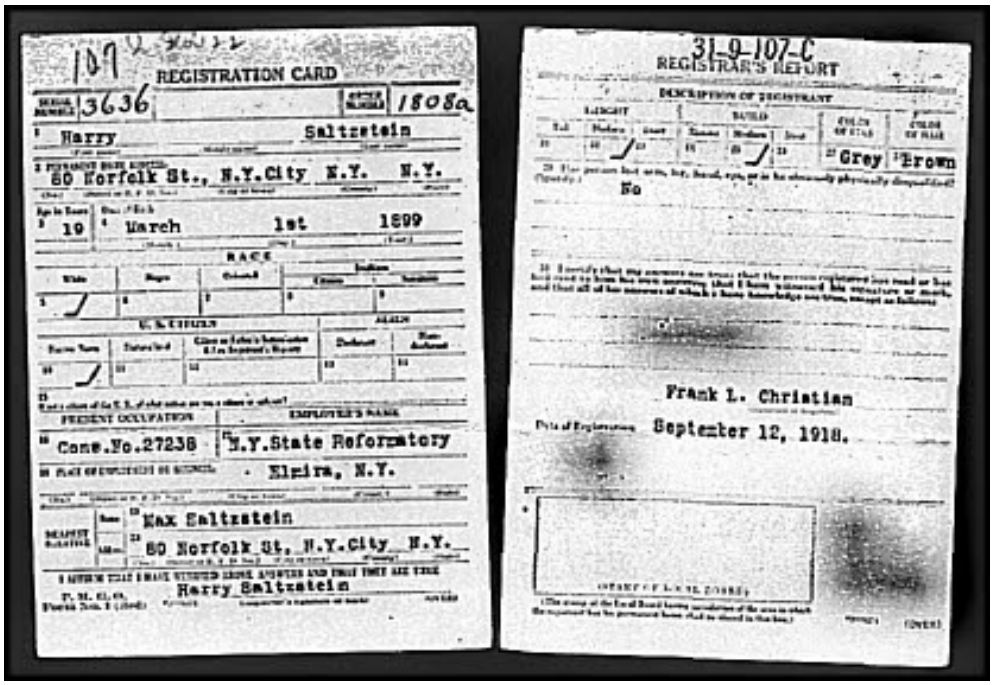

"The Attorney General also holds in effect that as between different applicants for permits to sell liquor at retail for medicinal purposes, all of whom are licensed pharmacists or who employ such a pharmacist, and who in all other respects comply with the requirements of the act, there is no authority for discrimination; that all reputable druggists authorized to compound and dispense medicines prescribed by physicians are entitled to a permit to sell liquor at retail on such prescriptions, and the same conclusion is reached by the Attorney General in relation to wholesale druggists, that is, that there can be no discrimination within the class by limiting arbitrarily the number of permits to be issued.

"He also holds that with respect to persons who may receive permits to manufacture there is no limitation as to the class of such persons."

When loading six barrels of grape wine upon a truck for New York six men, five residents of Manhattan, were arrested in Newark, N. J., in front of the place of Ernesto Pereira of 100 Commerce Street. Pereira was alleged to have admitted ownership of the wine, and was required to give $1,000 bail. He and two others are alleged to be transporting and illegally buying liquor. The other three were released. The detectives said they found 1,500 gallons of grape wine in Pereira's cellar.

Twenty-three cases of whisky were stolen from the warehouse of Zucker & Stoiner, Branford Place, Newark. The thieves forced one door and sawed their way through two others to get to the whisky and then forced another door to make their exit.

HARRY SALTZSTEIN
As told by his son, Robert

It would take a Damon Runyon or a Ring Lardner to adequately describe in a few paragraphs the life and times of my father Harry Saltzstein, but to comply with your request I will try.

Born of Polish Immigrants, Max and Gussie Saltzstein, in 1899, Harry grew up on the Lower East Side of Manhattan. He was very much the product of his generation. A tough kid he somehow managed to get a high school education. As the New York Times unearthed 50 years later, (in a typical piece of Yellow Journalism), he was sent to Reform School at age 16 for a petty theft.

Six years later he was the owner of a Liquor Distillery. He made and lost at least three fortunes in his lifetime. The first in the liquor business after the First World War, destroyed by Prohibition; the second as a significant stockholder (as he said he had enough stock certificates to paper the walls of our Brooklyn apartment) which he lost as the result of the biggest bank failure in U.S. history, the post Depression, U.S. bank and Trust failure of the early 1930's; and a loss of millions after World War Two due to bad investments.

In 1928, he settled in Brooklyn living at 451 Kingston Avenue where his brothers Lew and Sam Saltzstein and their families also lived.

When the building was built, it was the height of "Swank" It ran one full half block between Kingston and Lefferts Avenues in Crown Heights. In its heyday, it was a magnificent structure. The central lobby ran at least 75 feet and was built of all Italian marble, decorated exclusively in the Art Deco style of the day. Magnificent lamps and chandeliers, real oriental rugs and fine furniture. In its day, it had round the clock doormen service. The building was constructed with two wings of apartments, one on each side of the central Lobby.

Our three bedroom apartment was on the South corner of the second floor of the building.
Our family was a prime example of the extended family in action. My uncle Davey, (Dave Hoffman) and my aunt Ruth lived on the fourth floor of the opposite side of the building; my uncle Louie and his wife Lily lived down the hall from us on the second floor; my uncle Sam and his daughter Ruth lived on the third floor; my maternal grandmother and grandfather"Red" (Isidore and Sadie Hoffman), lived on the sixth floor; my Aunt Lee and uncle Sol lived on the third floor on the opposite side.

When I was about seven one of my best friends lost his leg in an elevator accident in the building...my father saved his life! He and I were playing around in the elevators riding up and down from the 6th floor, which was the top floor, in the building to the basement. Then we decide to see which elevator was fastest! He and I proceeded into separate elevators. The elevators, built in the twenties, required that you close a metal piped gate before the door would close somehow my friends gate got stuck and he, apparently trying to unjamm it, got his leg stuck...in a one in a million accident his leg got caught as the elevator started moving and the elevator moved up one floor My friend's leg was severed below the knee .

When I realized what was happening I ran screaming to my apartment blurted out between gasps what had happened...and my father grapping some sheets from the linen closet ran to help my friend. I was in shock and my father yelled to me as he was running out of the apartment, to lie down in my room. Later

I found out my father drove my friend leg and all to the hospital emergency room after putting a tourniquet on his leg.

Harry was a man's man with many friends and interesting business relationships. Harry had an extremely interesting business history involved in everything from a distillery located in Queens, New York called Hunter Distillery to ownership of many restaurants and bars,

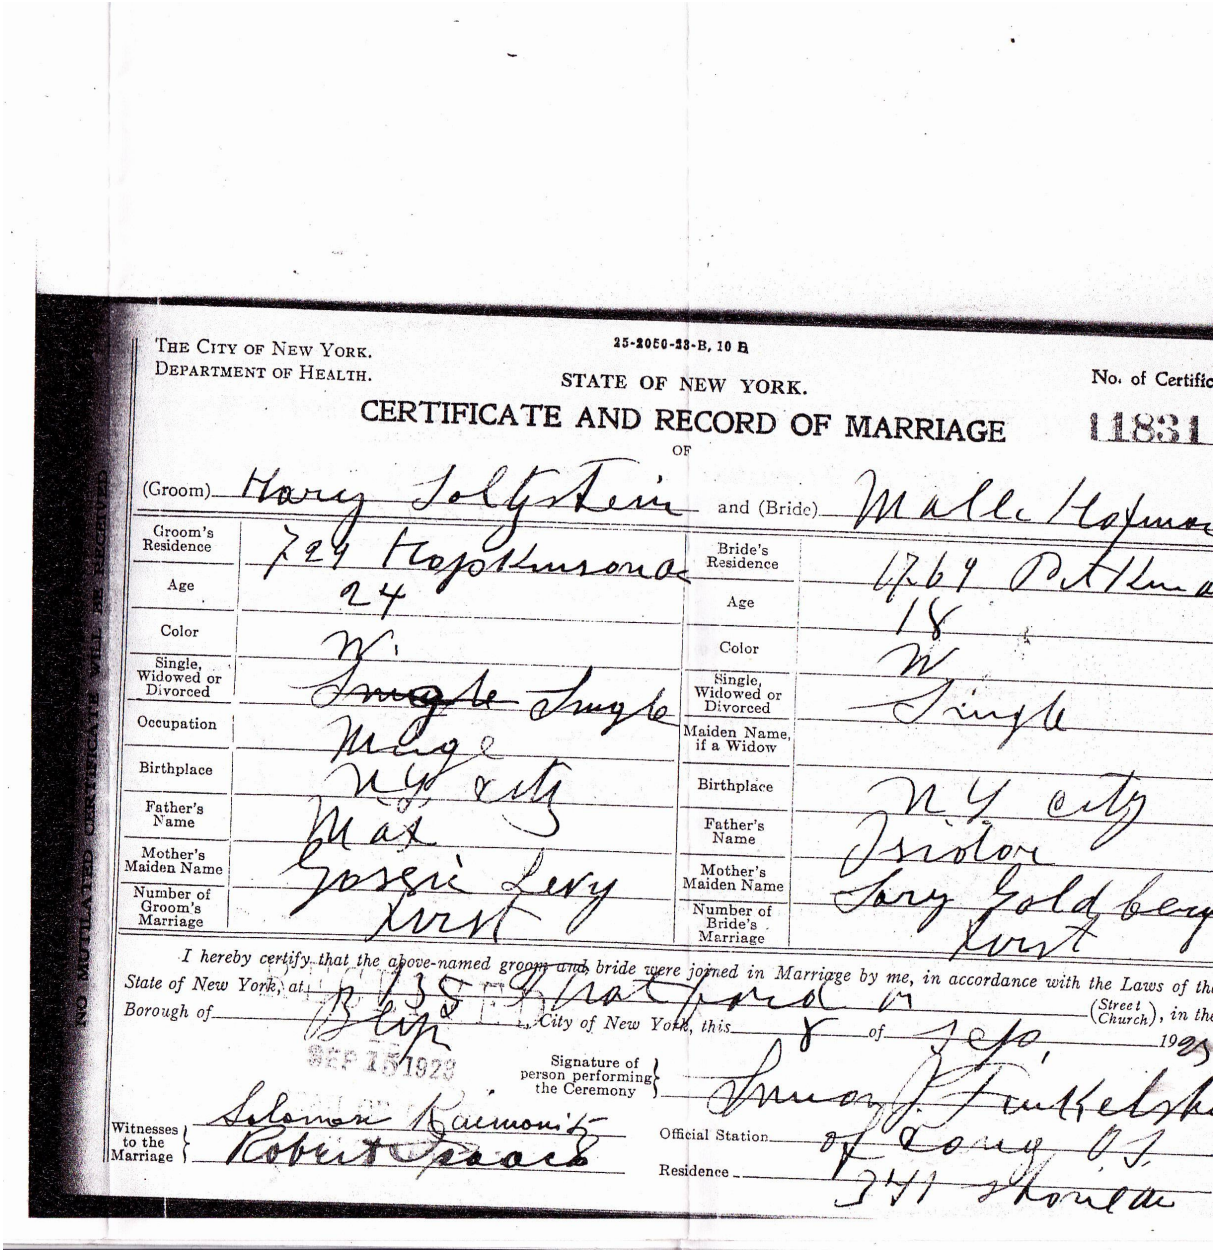

Harry was also involved in labor relations and actually had a company with the "god father" himself Carlo Gambino.

In the 1960's the New York Times ran a front page article about Harry's firm SGS Associate(Saltzstein, Gambino and Schiller) .Harry refused, despite constant harassment by the paper and thereafter Federal authorities, to indict in the newscaster either George Shriller or Carl Bambino, his partners. He refused to take the easy way out. Note that none of the partners or the partnership was ever indicted for any crime.

After Harry was called before a Federal Grand Jury at which he testified (he never took the Fifth Amendment), the Grand Jury Foreman stated that if he ever personally has problems he would want Harry to represent him.

Harry personified guts and courage. He was very proud of being a foreman at the Kaiser Ship Yard at the beginning of World War Two and of their accomplishment of building "a ship a day".

He had a 50 plus year marriage with his wife Molly and had two children Helen and Robert Saltzstein.

WARSAW JEWS IN THE POLISH CULTURAL LIFE OF THE EARLY 19TH CENTURY

By JACOB SHATZKY

Originally published in the author's Geshikhte fun yidn in Varshe (The History of the Jews in Warsaw) vol. ii, ch. viii (New York, Yivo, 1948)

Jews in Warsaw began to take an active part in Polish cultural life in the early part of the 19th century. This was a result of the general industrialization of the country, in which Polish Jews actively participated. The new Jewish intelligentsia, both the schooled and the auto-didacts, found employment in the banks, commission-houses, export-concerns and also in the liberal professions, particularly in medicine. Despite the prevailing difficult conditions, the development of Polish literature showed great progress. Although severely controlled as to thematic content it was not so with respect to form. The new trends of west-European thought permeated into Warsaw belatedly and somewhat distorted. The interest in humanities declined and a strong desire developed to catch up with western Europe in the field of natural science. The cult of the exact sciences was well suited for the prevailing conditions of capitalist enterprise in the country. The Biblioteka Warszawska, the most influential journal in Warsaw, devoted a great deal of space to natural science. This trend was particularly favored by Leopold Kronenberg (1812-78) and Mathias Rosen (1804-56), the two leading supporters of this journal. In 1849 Kronenberg created a special fund which secured the existence of the journal.

Paskevich, the Russian viceroy of Poland, was an adherent of "realistic" literature. According to his definition realism meant a literature which does not bury itself in the historical past but stands solidly with both feet on the ground of the present, which is true reality. This explains why the censorship was so strict with belles-lettres, particularly poetry, while it was liberal with books on chemistry, physics, medicine and agriculture.

Interesting chapter mentioning some Saltzsteins in Poland, relationship unclear

In 1843 Ludwik Natanson (1822-1896), then 21 years old, returned to Warsaw from his medical studies in Dorpat. Four years later he filed an application with the censor's office for permission to publish a Polish medical journal. He succeeded in persuading the government that this was a "realistic" activity and consequently there were no political-romantic objectives involved. Natanson received the desired permission. This journal, Tygodnik Lekarski, belongs to the most important medical journals in Poland. The Russian censorship little realized how Natanson's journal raised the national prestige of Polish medicine. His brother, Jakób Natanson (1832-1884), was a chemist of world renown. He published philosophical articles on the laws of organic life in the Biblioteka Warszawska. The Polish youth read the articles with great admiration. They rightly interpreted the thesis regarding organisms to mean national political organisms, while the censor praised the articles as a good defense of "realistic knowledge."

Jewish intellectuals began to occupy a prominent place in the literary and scientific life of Warsaw. Most of them came from well-to-do Jewish homes. This made it possible for them to become patrons of the more important journals and publications and also to become either contributors to or editors of such publications. A journal like the Tygodnik Lekarski, which was published for more than thirty years, cost its editor a fortune. A third brother in the Natanson family, Henryk Natanson, distinguished himself as a great patron of Polish culture. He owned one of the largest publishing houses in Warsaw. Henryk Natanson did not consider his publishing house as a business undertaking. He published basic works, both original and translations, on medicine and natural science. His publishing house, located at 17 Krakowskie Przedmieście, was, during the years 1850-1860, the club for Polonized Jewish maskilim. All the Judaica publications in all languages were available there. During the years 1861-1863 it was the distributing center of Daniel Neufeld's Polish-Jewish journal, Jutrzenka. Polish emigré publications were also available. This was definitely more a venture of self-sacrificing idealism than a business enterprise.

The bookstore of Samuel Orgelbrand, which became a publishing house in 1836, was a similar oasis of Polish culture. For some time Orgelbrand had been Henryk Natanson's partner. This learned maskil achieved renown for his "Great Polish Encyclopedia" and for his edition of the Talmud. Several of these Polonized maskilim dreamed of creating publishing houses for Polish Judaica. These pioneer publications were also considered as idealistic undertakings. Such idealists were Isidor Karlsbad (1833-1869) on Przejazd Street and Michael Frühling at 59 Nowy Świat Street. The latter specialized in the publication of Jewish prayer books in Polish and German and also opened the first important private circulating library in Warsaw. The considerable number of Jewish publishers of the previous period continued their Polish cultural activities. In 1840, out of 24 Polish bookdealers, 15 were Jews. Among the publishers, the most important were Jews or Jewish apostates. The second-hand bookstores were exclusively in Jewish hands. Their contribution to Polish culture was greatly praised by contemporaries. They created several libraries in Warsaw which eventually became national assets. The first systematic book-catalogues in Warsaw were published from 1848 to 1866 by Joseph Bernstein and continued by his son Karol.

Leibl Salcstein, former hasid of Kock, contributed greatly to the dissemination of Polish books with his publication of the practical yearbook for Polish farmers, which he issued from 1820 to 1866. Similarly, Moyshe Rodzyn, a misnaged and father of the subsequently famous lawyer and legal consultant to the Jewish community, Szymon Rodzyn, contributed greatly to the same cause with his Kalendarz astronomiczno-gospodarski, which he issued during the years 1850-1866.

Some of these publishing ventures by Warsaw Jews were of epochmaking significance. Such, for instance, was the Encyclopedia, issued by the then youthful Glicksberg in 1835. In 1851 the same Glicksberg published a magnificent edition of the old chronicles in Latin and Polish. This publication found such favor in the eyes of Paskevich that he rewarded the Jewish publisher with a diamond ring.[1]

The first Polish dealer in old books in Warsaw was Getsl Salcstein (1773-1841).[2] Daily for almost 50 years his house at 18 Marjensztadt

A list of Jewish financial contributors to the Biblioteka Warszawska is found in the Krasiński Library in Warsaw. The most important source for the Jewish antiquarians is Wójcicki, K. Wł., "Antykwarjusze żydowscy w Warszawie," in Gazeta Warszawska 1852) nos. 269-280.

[2] The material on Salcstein is based on the following sources: Wójcicki, K. Wł., "Warszawa i jej społeczność w początkach naszego stulecia," in Biblioteka Warszawska (1872) no. 2, p. 377; idem in Biblioteka Warszawska (1874) no. 4,

Street received visitors whose strange clothes and "professorial" spectacles seemed out of place in the narrow little street of the Warsaw suburb. Those visits were prompted by a very important reason. In this house lived the only Polish book antiquarian in Warsaw, Getsl Salcstein, and here he conducted his business. It is not known from where Salcstein came to Warsaw nor what prompted such a pious Jew to deal with old Polish books and manuscripts. The earliest information we have of his business comes from the Prussian period, in 1803. He was the first Buchjude whom the Prussian officials saw in Warsaw. A contemporary report from that period is worth citing:

> At 18 Marjensztadt Street lived the well-known Getsl Salcstein. He was known to the entire Warsaw school-youth and all the students of the Warsaw University. The most important and most active book business was carried on in his quarters. Everything in Warsaw that lived and breathed the native literature was attracted to these three little rooms[3]

About Salcstein the writer has the following to say:

> This was a Jew of rather short height, dark complexioned with a fine delicate face, with regular features, and dark, lively and sparkling eyes; in short, a good-looking man in the full sense of the word. The most amazing thing is that when he began to deal in Polish books he could not read Polish, but he was already thoroughly at home in Polish bibliography.[4]

In those small rooms on Marjensztadt Street the cream of Polish scholarship could be seen. The poet and first theorist of Polish romanticism, Kazimierz Brodziński, would spend days there. The Polish fable writer and great friend of the Jews, Stanisław Jachowicz, would hunt for editions of Lafontaine. Two great national libraries were built up with Getsl Salcstein's bibliographical and antiquarian aid. The first of these was the subsequently famous library of the Krasiński family. It was started in 1800 by General Wincenty Krasiński, author of a little book on the Jewish problem. The basis for this library, however, was the collection of Konstanty Świdziński, and this collection was created thanks to Getsl Salcstein's lucky hand and keen intuition. He would visit various palaces of nobles and buy up manuscripts, incunabula, precious renaissance and reformation editions, Dutch Elzevirs, Italian Aldines and many other fine examples of bookmaking. One of his contemporaries writes that Świdziński practically never left Salcstein's crowded little rooms because he was afraid that some competitor might grab the treasures that Salcstein was collecting for his library.

Świdziński's competitor was the library of the Warsaw University, founded in 1817. Here the precocious genius, Joachim Lelewel, was in charge of old books. Lelewel became good friends with the much older Getsl Salcstein. They would carry on long discussions, and more than one footnote in Lelewel's fundamental work on Polish bibliography (Vilna 1823-26) came from the pious Jewish antiquarian on Marjensztadt Street. Years later, when Lelewel was in exile and homesick for Warsaw, he wrote to his brother inquiring about Getsl.[5]

The gatherings at Getsl's house became famous among the literary and academic circles of Warsaw. "The sessions of the Society of Friends of the Sciences are poorly attended," complains its president, the poet and historian, Juljan Ursyn Niemcewicz, in one of his letters. "All the scholars spend their time at Getsl's, get hold of rare Polish editions and learn from him ... Polish bibliography."[6] One of the contemporaneous historians of the literary circles in Warsaw writes: "He was the promoter of knowledge and the discoverer of Polish cultural treasures. The most important private libraries in Warsaw were built up thanks to him."[7]

In 1831 misfortune befell Getsl. Like many Warsaw Jews of the time who had money, Getsl decided to become a manufacturer. He turned over his beloved business to his oldest son Leybl, a follower of Kock hasidim, and he opened a mirror factory. Within several months he lost his entire fortune and he returned to his book business. He died in the week of Passover, 1841. The Polish press published lengthy obituaries about him and the Allgemeine Zeitung des Judentums praised him as a model figure in the advancement of culture and in fidelity to his faith.

Poor Getsl Salcstein was not aware of the fact that his Polish cultural activities were the object of constant observation by the Russian viceroy in Poland, Prince Paskevich. At the Archiwum Akt Dawnych in Warsaw there is a complete file entitled: "Dyelo o yevreyskom Bukiniste Getsle Salcstein" (The Case of the Jewish Book-dealer Getzl Salcstein). In those days of black reaction, when the Policy Academy of Sciences and the university were shut up, those three little rooms at 18 Marjensztadt Street became a Polish literary and scholarly oasis. All the Polish historians and writers who were left in the country would congregate there and old Getsl would console them by showing them the treasures of the old glorious periods of Polish culture. Rocked to sleep with the dreams of the Polish past and still clinging to that past, this remnant of the former broad cultural world of Warsaw drowned its sorrows in the comforting words of the Jew, Getsl Salcstein. The watching eyes of the Russian gendarmerie looked upon these gatherings with suspicion. When Getsl died Paskevich ordered secret agents to be sent to the Jewish cemetery and report to him concerning the funeral. It was expected that this occasion would be utilized for a patriotic demonstration. This did not happen however. The agent who reported to the viceroy wrote that according to the opinions of the Jews the Jewish cemetery had never before seen so many Polish noblemen as at Getsl Salcstein's funeral. After his death his widow continued the business. In 1843 Prot Lelewel wrote to his brother, Joachim, that the widow Salcstein conducts the business and sends regards to the friend of his deceased husband.[8]

Two of Getsl's sons followed in their father's footsteps. One of them, the above-mentioned Leybl, had a business on Franciszkańska Street; the other son, Yoyne-Ber, on the Nalewki. Leybl opened his business in 1820; his brother, a few years later. Leybl did not limit himself to selling old books. He became a publisher and issued the agricultural almanac, which, during its forty-five years of existence, became the most important source of information for Polish farmers regarding developments in agriculture. The almanac appeared under the title Kalendarz astronomiczno-gospodarski and was published from 1820 to 1866, when Leybl died. This hasid attracted the best Polish specialists as editors and compilers of his famous almanac. He was a real pioneer in the agricultural literature of Poland and his almanac became a permanent fixture in the courts of the Polish gentry.

As time went on the family increased with additional children and grandchildren and thus a remarkable and singular dynasty of Polish bookdealers and antiquarians developed. At the end of the 19th century there were five Salcsteins in Warsaw who were in the book business. They were all hasidim. In the beginning of the 20th century some of the Salcsteins emerged as misnagdim, even influenced somewhat by haskalah, but inclined to the Khoyveve Tsion. They read the Hazefira and their "rebbe" was no longer the Rabbi of Ger but Nahum Sokolow. All of them, the hasidim as well as the misnagdim, had mastered the Polish language, were well-oriented in Polish bibliography and published substantial catalogues of rare books, compiled mainly by Polish historians and bibliographers. In 1918, the Salcsteins, together with another and much younger dynasty of bookdealers, the Kleinsingers, located on Świętokrzyska Street, organized the first Union of Jewish antique-dealers and antiquarians. They organized courses on Polish and general bibliography and art history and invited the best scientific talent in Warsaw.

In a letter from Lelewel to his brother, Prot,[9] regarding the news of the death of Getsl Salcstein, he quoted the famous lines from Mickiewicz's poem of 1833, which would have been most fitting as an epitaph on his tombstone had the nestor of Polish antiquarians not been a pious Jew:

> Stąd nimo carskich gróźb na złość strażników ceł,
> Prezemycał w Litwę Żyd tomiki moich dzieł.
> (Regardless of tsarist threats and despite the many guards,
> The Jew smuggles into Lithuania the volumes of my words.)

A German traveler who visited Warsaw in 1843 writes that the Jewish dealers in old books were the only promoters of culture of world-wide scale. In their stores could be found the rarest works in all languages and of all countries. A historian of the German book trade relates that at international auctions of rare books and manuscripts the Warsaw Buchjude was a popular figure.[10]

Among the Jewish bookdealers, most of whom were pious Jews, even hasidim, who fired the hearts of the Polish patriots with their idiomatic Polish, there were also the patrons of Polish culture. The Natansons and the Rosens spared no money for Polish scientific publications and these were sold below cost in order to give them wider distribution. The Jewish patrons covered the deficits. There were some among them who devoted themselves not to culture in Polish but to purely Polish culture. Under the difficult political conditions of that time, when patriotic writing was banned, paintings and museum exhibitions of the old Polish past served as substitutes which satisfied the Polish yearnings and aroused love of old Polish life. The cult of national relics became widespread in Warsaw. Homes of rich Jews were converted into private Polish museums. More than one Polish noble family, forced to liquidate its centuries-old family heirlooms, was pleased that these did not leave the country but remained in Poland in the "good Polish hands" of wealthy Jews. We find such a collection already in 1853, in the home of Mathias Bersohn (1823-1908), the son of the sugar-manufacturer and parnes of the kehilla, Meier Bersohn. His house in Elektoralna Street became famous as a Polish literary salon where, in an atmosphere of old Polish furniture and paintings, one felt as though he were in a "corner of real old Poland," as an old native of Warsaw and diarist puts it. Bersohn had agents in Poland as well as abroad who would unearth for him Polish and, later, also Jewish-Polish manuscripts, paintings, books and furniture. This was considered of such great importance that worthy individuals in several towns became voluntary correspondents who kept Bersohn informed about such Polish historical relics. In Lublin, for instance, Bersohn's correspondent was an esteemed Jewish lawyer, Jacob Goldschmidt, the author of several works on Talmudic law.[11]

This type of patron of Polish art and culture became an established figure among the Jewish bourgeoisie in Warsaw and was identified with the "progressive Israelite." A contemporary writer defined the latter as one who's philosophy of life expressed itself above all in being esteemed by respectable Poles without complete estrangement from Jews.[12]

> Religion and descent have only historical meaning for this type of Jew. But he recognizes the needs of the country and the requirements of the community as his own and he regards it as his most sacred duty to help realize these requirements.

This "progressive Israelite" was above all a patron of the arts. He collected Polish antiques in order thereby to emphasize his Polishness. He was a promoter of education, gave support to Polish writers and published their works. The greater the losses of his Polish publishing
